TRIAL OF GEN. BRISCOE.

The trial by court-martial of Brevet Brig.-Gen. BRISCOE, arrested for an attempt to rob the Quartermaster's safe at Lynchburgh, began this morning, before the court of which Brevet Major-Gen. GEO. S. GREENE is President, and Brig.-Gen. H. Prince, Brig.-Gen. H. Briggs, Brevet Brig.-Gen. J. M. Hederick, Brevet Brig.-Gen. F. H. Collier, Col. John Flynn, Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania, are members, and Col. H. B. Burnham, U. S. A., Judge-Advocate. The prisoner was represented by Ex-Lieut.-Gov. THOS. H. FORD and L. G. HINE as counsel. BRISCOE was present attired in a Brigadier-General's uniform, and maintained a quiet and deliberate composure, which, combined with a fine personal presence and a long record as an efficient officer, caused many to regret that he should have fallen into such deep disgrace. He entered the war as a Lieutenant, served a long time on the staff of Major-Gen. BIRNEY, was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel and then to the Colonelcy of the One Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvania Regiment, and was but recently brevetted for gallant and meritorious conduct. The counsel for the prisoner do not pretend to deny the offence charged, but will urge as their defence, that the government cannot hold the prisoner responsible for a crime which he was induced to commit through the connivance or instrumentality of its own officials. The amount of money which BRISCOE is charged with having stolen, proves to be but about $2,500, the packages of currency taken proving to be Confederate notes. The first charge is that of larceny with specifications that the defendant did steal, in Lynchburgh, Va., one bar of gold bullion, valued at $1,189; gold coin of the value of $1,000; one package of silver coin, $300; one package of silver coin, $50, being moneys belonging to the United States. These were stolen from the custody of MORRIS S. ALBERGER, Quartermaster. The second charge is that of conspiracy to steal; that in having proposed in conversation with MORRIS S. ALBERGER, Quartermaster, that the money belonging to the United States in his safe could be taken and nobody be the wiser for it, and that ALBERGER should pack it up so that the gold would not jingle; that he, BRISCOE, would so manage it as to throw suspicion upon other parties. The accused plead not guilty to the entire accusation. The first witness called was MORRIS H. ALBERGER, Captain and Assistant Quartermaster. Witness is acquainted with Gen. BRISCOE; had a conversation with him on the morning of the 26th of September, in Gen. BRISCOE's room at headquarters in Lynchburgh, in the court-house; was sent for by Gen. BRISCOE to his private room, who asked me what amount of money I had in my safe, and what denominations, saying, at the same time, that it could be taken as well as not, and no one be the wiser for it; he asked how much gold and silver and other money; I told him between sixty thousand and seventy thousand dollars; he proposed to throw a small amount of money into some place, and to have my house broken open and my safe-key stolen, to which I objected; he said the money could be taken and half the town arrested to cover it up; he asked for my key; I went and brought it; he asked how long he could have it; told him he could have it in one hour and ten minutes; he asked me for some wax; I saw him again about 1 o'clock and received the safe key; during the conversation he said when I was arrested he would be President of the court-martial and have me acquitted; when I went into his room in the morning Mr. A. W. LACKEY was there, and he says to witness, "The General is all right, as I told you," and then the General asked the questions about the money; the General remarked "that paper money should be packed in small packages, and gold and silver should be put in one bag, and tied tightly so that it would not jingle;" he asked if I generally kept my money in the bank; I told him I did over night, but sometimes did not; Gen. BRISCOE proposed to take the money with a false key, but no time was set; after leaving Gen. BRISCOE witness proceeded to the telegraph office and telegraphed the circumstance to the Secretary of War; met Mr. LACKEY on the way and he said: I have a beautiful impression, and pointed to some package bulging his pocket; he remarked that the wax was a little soft, but it was all right; on the evening of the 21st of September, Mr. LACKEY said to witness it was hard time for Quartermasters going out of the service, and if I did not make myself rich out of it I was a fool; I asked him what he meant; he said you are handling government funds, and can dispose of them as you please; he said if you conclude to do this, let me know, and I will telegraph to Gen. BRISCOE about it; he then got on the train, saying he was going to Washington; I told my friend, Capt. GERARD, what a proposition had been made involving Gen. BRISCOE, and he suggested I should go to Washington instead; I went to the telegraph office, and sent a dispatch to Secretary STANTON:

> Can Col. BAKER come here at once, or can I come to Washington on business very important?
> M. H. ALBERGER,
> Captain and Quartermaster.

On Sunday night met Mr. LACKEY at the depot of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, who asked my business in Washington, and I told him I was trying to get a sheet of differences settled with the department, and spoke of the hardships of Quartermasters having their pay stopped for losses; and he then again proposed to take the government money, and said Gen. BRISCOE was all right. I finally told him I would enter into the conspiracy, and he told me as we parted at Gordonsville to tell Gen. BRISCOE I had seen him; I went to the General and told on the 26th, witness was summoned as a witness to Richmond, and met LACKEY on the train, who said he had the wax impression; he went to Washington on returning from Richmond, Wednesday; LACKEY was in the train at Gordonsville, and handed witness a duplicate key to the safe and asked for the key of the other safe, which he took into the baggage car and came back after a while, saying he could not get an impression. Witness arrived in Lynchburgh on Thursday, and tried the false key, found it would fit, and showed it to his head clerk; on Friday Gen. BRISCOE asked again about the money, and gave directions how it should be divided and packed. He asked witness to bring out his share of the money, but witness said he supposed Mr. LACKEY was to take the money; he said no, LACKEY would take it all, and he should get none, and he would be off to Europe; the General gave one of his stockings to witness to put the coin into, and witness opened a cigar box containing the coin and filled it; on Friday, Sept. 26, Gen. CURTIS and his Adjutant-General came to witness' office, and the safe was opened and the money found missing; witness described the money missing from the safe; two packages of $20,000 each, Confederate money; the coin was American; the bar was stamped with its value as from the Confederate assay office of Georgia; witness was called into Gen. BRISCOE's office after his arrest and asked to identify the packages found there. The duplicate key of the safe handed witness by LACKEY was produced in court and identified by witness, as were also the packages and bags of money, which he identified by the seals; the coins were placed in custody of witness by Gen. CURTIS, Provost-Marshal-General; Gen. CURTIS is in command of the Department of South Western Virginia.

Cross-examined by Gov. Ford—Witness had the conversation with LACKEY on the 21st of September, at the depot of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, and on telegraphing to the Secretary of War was ordered to Washington; had an interview with Gen. BAKER at the War Department, who told witness to go ahead, to do all he was told to do, and to work up the case the best way he could. By Gov. FORD—What was meant by working up the case? Objected to by the Judge-Advocate as irrelevant. The court was cleared for deliberation, and afterward adjourned.

GEN. GRANT.

Lieut.-Gen. GRANT is in Pittsburgh. The General will be in Philadelphia on Saturday next, and will return to this city on Monday evening next.

THE WIRZ TRIAL.

At least a dozen times during the progress of the Wirz trial, Mr. BAKER, the prisoner's counsel, has insolently threatened that if a certain course was not pursued, he would leave the court, as if it made the least difference to the court what he did. To-day again he threatened to leave, when Gen. GEARY put a stop to this bombast by telling him that the court would no longer stand it, and that he must proceed with his witnesses without further delay. The counsel proceeded.

NATIONAL BANKS.

The announcement of National Banks still being established should not be construed to mean that any new banks are actually being authorized, except in a few cases in the South. The announcements of new National Banks now refer to banks which were authorized months ago, but whose certificates have been withheld until they have complied with the provisions of the Banking Law, which requires that their circulation shall not exceed at the maximum 90 per cent. of their capital. The bank note circulation of the country is, therefore, slowly decreasing, as most of these State Banks had a circulation far in excess of their capital.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

The internal revenue receipts in the last ninety-six days (Sundays included) amounted to the sum of one hundred millions nine hundred and thirty-five thousand three hundred and twenty-one dollars ninety-four cents, being greatly in excess of what was expected by any one conversant with the business of the Internal Revenue Department. The receipts for the month of September were thirty-seven millions nine hundred and thirty-nine thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars and eighty-two cents. To-day's receipts are one million eight hundred and eighty-two thousand four hundred and fifty-three dollars and ninety-four cents.

REVENUE DECISIONS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue to-day decided that traveling agents of manufacturers and dealers, regarded as commercial brokers under the decision of Aug. 18, will be required to procure license from the 1st of August instead of the 1st of May, thereby reducing the cost of the license for the current revenue year from $20 to $15. The reason of this decision is because the construction of this law was made subsequent to the date of the annual licenses.

HONORABLE PROMOTION.

Paymaster H. L. KING, of Albany, N. Y., nephew of Hon. PRESTON KING, has been the recipient of two brevets from the War Department for meritorious services. Mr. KING, at the outbreak of the rebellion, volunteered in the line, and was afterward appointed Paymaster.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

Secretary SEWARD and his son FREDERICK left here to-day, intending to go to Auburn, N. Y., where they intend to remain about ten days.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Attorney-General SPEED left to-day for his home in Kentucky, intending to be absent about two weeks. During his absence the duties of the office will be performed by Assistant Attorney-General J. HUBLEY ASHTON.

WORK FOR NEGROES.

The Secretary of the Treasury recently received an important communication from the Chamber of Commerce of Cincinnati, transmitting a suggestion made by a citizen of Ohio in reference to the employment of freedmen along the Mississippi, under the direction of the officers of the government, or otherwise, in repairing the broken levees on the lower coast of the Mississippi River, in order to give employment, as the statement reads, to thousands of freedmen out of work, and by so doing to aid the landowners on the Mississippi in restoring the country in that section to its former condition. In order to reimburse the government for the labors performed by the freedmen it is proposed after the completion of the levees that a tax be levied upon the landowners benefited by the improvement. Secretary MCCULLOCH referred the matter to the Commissioner of Freedmen's Affairs with the following indorsement: "Assuming the condition of the freedmen and of part of the country as represented, it would appear desirable that some plan to meet the exigencies of the situation should be devised." Gen. HOWARD, of the Freedmen's Bureau, referred the papers to Col. EATON, Assistant Commissioner of the Bureau, who having been connected with freedmen's affairs in Mississippi, was deemed competent to place the matter in a proper light. Col. EATON, in his reports, says some of the levees were destroyed by the rebels, some by our armies. They never have been cared for by the General Government. They could be fitly at present it seemed to me only as part of the military work connected with the war. The war has closed. I should deprecate the General Government taking upon itself special expense especially discharging the duties of municipalities or States. The General Government can no more assume to repair all the damages done by the rebellion than assume the rebel debt. The people owning the property along the river are specially interested on having the levees repaired. Their condition does not materially affect commerce. The government is interested in them only as it is interested in the property of each different locality of the country. The Secretary of the Treasury being absent the matter will not be decided until his return.

PARDONS.

The President to-day granted 85 amnesty pardons.

THE WIRZ MILITARY COMMISSION.

Testimony Taken Yesterday—A Clerk of Capt. Wirz on the Stand—How Rations were Distributed—What was Done when Men were Reported Missing.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

A. Moesner testified that, after he had been taken prisoner to Andersonville, he was paroled and sent to Capt. Wirz's office as clerk; he had to carry orders to the stockade, and morning reports to Gen. Winder's headquarters; the requisitions were made out every day; they stated the number of prisoners inside and those on duty outside the stockade; the quantity of rations was left blank; the Commissary would see how many men were present, and he would then know the number of rations he had to furnish. Every morning a list was made out of the number of rations each detachment had to get from the cookhouse; the witness carried that list to Duncan, and left it with him; he did not remember of the rations being stopped for the entire camp; they were sometimes stopped in a squad when a man was reported missing; as soon as the Federal sergeant could answer for the man, the rations were returned. If he reported him escaped or sick, the rations were renewed; boxes from the North arrived three times; some were sent by the Sanitary Commission and some by the friends of the prisoners; witness saw many boxes outside of the stockade; one of the clerks told him these boxes were for men who could not be found, or had died; when the second lot of boxes was received, Lieut. Davis was in command; he gave the contents of the boxes to the men outside the stockade; there were 33,000 prisoners inside the stockade at that time; the third lot of boxes was received in November; they contained blankets and clothing; they were taken to the storehouse near Wirz's office; he sent down, for all the paroled men, about hundred and fifty; every one of them got a whole suit of clothes, excepting shoes; about fifty pairs of shoes were received and he gave them to those who were most in need of them; The other things were turned over to the hospital; witness had seen some colored men get things; a Confederate Sergeant was in charge of the colored men, and he came over and obtained some clothing. There may have been thirty or forty boxes belonging to the prisoners which could not be found. Capt. WIRZ had nothing to do with the boxes after they were turned over to the surgeons; witness sold a pair of pants he received from Wirz to a Confederate sergeant for five dollars, with which he bought a blanket; Gen. Winder gave an order to search Stoneman's raiders; the boxes were searched to ascertain whether they contained liquors; Capt. Wirz gave Duncan some tools, picks and shovels, in order to enable the prisoners to dig wells. He also gave Duncan orders to provide the prisoners with barrels to put down in the wells to keep the dirt from falling in; there was a detail of 150 men to clean the camp; it was a very hard matter to obtain the shovels and picks. he finally succeeded in obtaining about seventy-five; it was a common thing to see about some of the tools broken; about forty or fifty boys were in the stockade; Capt. Wirz requested Dr. White to take them into the hospital to help the nurses or cook; he said if he had his way he would send these boys into the Union lines, as it was of no use to keep them prisoners of war; they would only get sick and die; these boys were taken to the hospital; on one occasion witness was sick with the dysentery, and asked the doctor for some medicine; the doctor said he had been sick with the same disease himself, but had no medicine; he, however, told witness to go and get blackberries; witness did so, and was cured; Capt. Wirz gave an order that these boys should gather blackberries for the sick, which they did; witness afterward understood that the nurses made pies out of them, and the sick got none; Doctor White, as the small-pox was increasing, gave orders that the prisoners should be vaccinated. Capt. Wirz said to a man who refused to be vaccinated that he did not care if the latter should die, the order not having been given by himself. The chain-gang was formed under Winder's orders, when a plot had been matured by the prisoners to escape; Capt. Wirz said he would abstain from shooting as long as he could; Capt Wirz was sick in July and also during August; so far as witness recollected Lieut. Davis was in command; in September Wirz came back very sick; witness never heard of any body dying at Wirz's headquarters, nor of his having beaten, killed or shot a man.

Mr. Baker asked the witness if such a thing had been done, was he not in such a relation to the person that he would have known of the circumstance.

Col. Chipman objected to the question, for the reason mainly that the acceptance of the answer would be placing too much reliance on the negative testimony of the witness, which was simply an opinion.

Mr. Baker briefly argued that the question was a legitimate one and one which in all criminal prosecutions could be asked.

The court sustained the objection of Col. Chipman.

The witness among other things testified that the hospital attendants serenaded Capt. Wirz and Surgeons Stevens and White.

Cross-examined by the Judge-Advocate—Witness came from Germany in 1862, and gave the particulars of his entering the United States service. He applied to Capt. Wirz for clerical duty, stating in his letter that he was acquainted with about four languages. He was a German from Frankfort-on-the-Main. The position of clerk outside was better than confinement inside. If while serving as a clerk Capt. Wirz had asked him to do anything inconsistent with his oath to the United States, he would have refused to do it. He served Capt. Wirz as far as that oath permitted. Witness received double rations, one of which he sold to Capt. Wirz for eighty cents Confederate money. He did not know what Wirz did with the rations. Wirz had the power to both issue and stop the rations of the prisoners, and he exercised it. Wirz never signed or approved the requisitions for the hospitals, as he did not exercise control over the rations for them.

Judge-Advocate Chipman here asked the witness a question relative to Gen. Winder's order about the chain-gang.

The witness went on to speak about some other matter, and had evidently commenced a long story, when Col. Chipman requested him to confine himself to the question.

Mr. Baker wanted his witness to be given an opportunity to explain. If the gentleman (Chipman) did not treat the witnesses fairly, he (Baker) would put no more upon the stand.

Major-Gen. Geary thought Mr. Baker ought to have more sense. He was becoming tired of the course of the counsel for the defence and would not stand it any longer. At every turn the counsel threatened the court. It was a little too much, and he was disposed to stop it if nobody else would. It was an outrage on the court.

Mr. Baker replied that he had not threatened the court.

Gen. Geary replied: Counsel had repeatedly threatened not to do this or that unless the court should accede to his wishes, and that he would put no more witnesses on the stand.

Mr. Baker in explanation said he had asked the Judge-Advocate to stop repeatedly, but the latter paid no attention to him. If he was thus to be treated there was but little use in putting witnesses on the stand.

The President informed Mr. Baker that he had been repeatedly told he must make his objection to the court, not to the Judge-Advocate,

The cross-examination of the witness was then resumed.

The witness testified positively that Capt. Wirz was not on duty at Andersonville from the 4th to the 30th of August.

George W. F. Reynolds testified that he was taken prisoner as a spy in Tennessee, made his escape, but was recaptured in Mississippi and sent to Richmond; afterward he was transferred to Andersonville, where he arrived in June, 1864; he acted as a prison sutler, and also as a magistrate; men were brought before him for stealing, who were punished by flogging, being set to work, and watched; a number of men were banded together and took by force what was not their own, such as watches, money, clothing, food and tin cups; a police force was organized to put down the "Raiders;" this police force was called the "Regulators;" on one occasion the "Raiders" tried to put down the "Regulators," when the latter called for and obtained assistance from Capt. Wirz; eleven of the "Raiders" were arrested, six of whom were hanged and five were placed in the chain-gang.

The witness, among other surprising statements, said there were five or six working shoemakers in the stockade, as many tailors, and two watchmakers.

The witness also testified that the streets of the camp were filled with "soup-jobbers," and at the roughly-constructed tables could be bought coffee, tea, ham and eggs, &c.; there were 500 bakers in the stockade, who baked and sold pies and cakes; there was plenty of flour, salaratus, etc.

Witness had an establishment called the "Novelty Store;" he had a greater variety of articles than any other person in camp; he sold flour, hams, chickens, pepper, sorghum, beans, peas, etc., besides medicines.

Witness further testified there was a half million of greenback currency in camp; there were also in camp barber-shops, clothiers and brokers; the latter were engaged in buying paper money, checks and gold and silver; there were also jewelry-shops in the camp, and in one of these he saw fifty watches and a number of breastpins and rings to be repaired; the owner of this shop kept a journeyman.

The witness also testified that there were also fuel and lumber merchants at the prison at Andersonville, and that lots of ground were purchased at reasonable rates within the stockade on which shanties were erected; there were also gamblers there who had runners out to hunt up victims.

The witness testified to many other things, showing that extensive trade and theft was carried on at the prison; the men suffered from exposure, but he could not say that they suffered from hunger.

The witness said that there were about a thousand dealers in various kinds of food and goods at the prison.

The court then adjourned.

GOV. FENTON'S INVESTIGATION

SECOND DAY'S WORK AND EVIDENCE.

Absence of Witnesses and Lack of Testimony.

Speeches of Counsel---Adjournment of the Court.

The second session of the Gubernatorial Convention was held yesterday, at 10:30 o'clock A. M. Gov. FENTON was accompanied by Gen. HARVEY and Gen. SWAIN, of his staff, while the several counsel, including H. H. ANDERSON, Esq., who is associated with Judge ALLEN for Mr. DEVELIN, sat as before at the Aldermanic desks. The audience, which was very large, was in a happy mood; the defendants were radiant and their counsel jolly, while candor compels the record that the counsel of Messrs. KINGSLEY, MCCAFFERTY & Co. were solemn as the tomb and glum as misers.

The official stenographer, Mr. ANDREWS, of Washington, had not completed his copy of the previous day's evidence, so that Mr. AULD, who was in attendance, could not make affidavit to its correctness. This and sundry other points were discussed, after which Mr. WM. C. KINGSLEY, a tall, thin Brooklyn man, was called by the prosecution, the examination being conducted by Judge EMOTT.

EVIDENCE OF WM. C. KINGSLEY.

I am the person mentioned by Mr. Auld as one of the bidders; I live in Brooklyn, and have done so for seven years; I am a contractor, and have been thirteen years; I became so when I was nineteen years of age; I have worked principally on Western railways, also on Central Park and Brooklyn Water Works.

Some discussion then took place between Judge Emott and Mr. Brady as to the consequence of the witness evidence. Mr. Brady objected to his proving his qualification. Judge Emott desired to show that the witness was one who should have had the contract if the interests of the city had been consulted, and sustained his view of the case by a long argument on the merits of the firm of contractors of which Mr. Kingsley is one. Mr. Brady rejoined that he had no feeling in the matter only that he wished to save time. He said:

These counsel are in error in supposing that your Excellency has anything to do with the decision of the commission, unless it can be shown that they decided corruptly. What if you should conclude that they had decided wrong? What of it, if they did their duty? They swear they did, and no one has yet pretended they did not. As to Mr. Boole's objection to this man's living in Brooklyn, I confess that I can understand it. It may be surprising to the other counsel, that New-York should prefer her own sons in office, for we know that when a collector of the port is chosen, we don't have a man selected from our own citizens, who is distinguished for learning or position or experience in commercial affairs, but we are furnished a collector from the country. And Mr. Boole, very likely, thought it would be well to have a man who was accessible, whose residence was on this island, and who could be got at readily when wanted. But, aside from all this, of what earthly interest to us is this person's opinion of himself or his qualifications? He may be the best man in the world—he may, of all contractors, be the shrewdest and most prudent; that has nothing to do with the case before your Excellency. We are here to test the honor and faith of the gentlemen of the commission, and unless these parties can show the corruption and willful misconduct of the commissioners, the case is gone. I therefore object to this evidence as entirely irrelevant.

Gov. Fenton—I may as well remark that I cannot remain in the city very long, and I wish you would make all proceedings as brief as possible. I hardly think it important that counsel should go very far outside of the main question in their questions. I desire that all side issues be avoided; but I cannot see that the questions proposed by the counsel are out of place, and I shall, without giving final decision, recommend that, while he may continue these queries on this branch of the question, he shall carefully abstain from touching upon ground which has no immediate connection with the case. The counsel will please proceed.

Mr. Brady—Let the gentleman state what he proposes to show by this witness.

Judge Emott said he proposed to ask the witness what work he had done in New-York, and what measure of responsibility he has sustained.

Mr. Graham—On behalf of the City Inspector I have to request that the counsel on the other side shall be compelled to give us the exact issue, and upon what particular charge they place the evidence of this witness. The real question is not whether this contract was awarded improvidentially, but whether they acted willfully and corruptly. The Governor could not remove any public officer simply on an error of judgment. If the charge is specified we can save time and reduce the proceedings to the ordinary rule of practice. My motion is that they now direct us to the particular charge.

Gov. Fenton—Let the counsel show what he proposes to prove.

Judge Emott said he proposed to prove the fitness of these men to fulfill the contract. I offer this testimony and ask you to take it, if you refuse I must of course go on. I offer the work done by this person in New-York. I shall not stop to answer any objection.

Mr. Graham—It is no answer that they don't know what they want to prove. They ought to know. Here are fourteen specifications, and we ask them to tell us which one they propose to prove by this witness? Is there anything unreasonable about this? The court would compel counsel to do the same in a criminal court, and we insist upon it. The Legislature declared that these five men were the best on Manhattan Island to decide who should have this contract, and they have decided, and now your Excellency has only to decide whether these commissioners acted willfully and corruptly. They were only to read the proposals and decide by them. They were not to look into their past record, and I now move that you direct the counsel to point us to the exact and particular charge.

Gov. Fenton—I have decided that the counsel shall go on with a certain class of queries, and after that I will decide. I hardly think it worth while to confine the counsel to specific charges.

Mr. Graham objected, and his objection was noted.

Mr. Kingsley—I built the sewer in Fifty-sixth-street, Lexington-avenue, Third-avenue, Fifty-ninth-street and Eighth-avenue; it's a very large sewer; it was done by the direction of the Croton Aqueduct Board, commenced in 1861 and ended in 1864; I have a contract to build a wall at Central Park, on Fifth-avenue side; I put in a bid for the street cleaning under the first advertisement; this is it; it was returned to Mr. Cafferty unopened on the 22d of May, in my presence; there were six bids, I think; Mr. Brown, who has the contract, was not at the Mayor's office; I don't know Devoe or Knapp; Mr. Brown is a contractor; I know him very well; I don't know the others as such; I don't know all the parties who had bids returned; I know Judge Whiting and our own party: Brown, Devoe and Knapp may have had a bid, but I don't know; I talked with Mr. Brown that day.

Q.—What did you talk about?

Mr. Brady—I object: there is no earthly topic that could be of any interest to us. They may have discussed politics and religion in the most entertainingly orthodox style, but really I haven't the remotest desire to know their opinions on the subject.

Gov. Fenton—The witness need not answer the question.

Mr. Kingsley—I don't know anything about their bids; this is my proposal, (it was marked Y); it is the same as the other; I put in a second bid; my partners live in Thirty-eighth-street, New-York; I never made any complaint of the second specifications; I desired no modification, nor did we request it; the pecuniary responsibility of my partners I know of.

Q.—Were you competent to take it?

Mr. Graham—Ask him what he's worth.

Gov. Fenton—Go on.

Mr. Graham and Mr. Brady—We object.

Gov. Fenton—I don't see any objection. The witness may testify as to his general responsibility.

A.—We felt confident that we were competent.

Cross-examined by Mr. Brady—I don't recollect how often we were to sweep the street; I knew at the time; I read the specifications; I took the advice of Mr. Waterbury; I knew the city could forfeit the contract; I would not like to make a contract to sweep the streets three times a week without reference to the weather for ten years.

Cross-examined by Judge Allen—I did not object to the return of the first specifications; the second are acceptable to me, but I did not examine them very critically; I did not write nor cause to be written a letter to the commissioners; I do not remember that I employed counsel to call on them; I knew Mr. Brennan as an official only; he only knew me as working in his department; I met him once in relation to final payment of contract; there was an objection made by him, and then I had to see him; I also met Mr. Develin about the same business; the charge against me was that the water-pipes broke and detained us some time—there was no question about it; Mr. Brennan needed the advice of Mr. Develin, and that was the reason of my calling on him; I saw him two or three times about it; I know Judge Waterbury; he may have seen some of the commissioners in my behalf; we consulted him before the letting and during the time.

Cross-examined by Mr. Graham—I do not know much about James Gregory; I met him yesterday first; I don't know who asked him to swear to these charges; I don't know how he came to be put forward; he was introduced to me; I am not a party to employ counsel, except with my partners; I have employed Messrs. Emott and Waterbury; I never had anything to do with my partners before; I made an honest, consistent bid, and expected to do the work if I got the contract; there were no agreements behind it; I solicited Judge Waterbury, who knew I was bidding, that if he met any of the commission that he would say something to them; he knew that I was his client and he knew parties who knew me; I may have asked other parties: Mr. Waterbury didn't profess to have any influence: we three made our calculations together in detail; Mr. McCafferty and Mr. Guydet went first and made a calculation; we met at Gedey's house to revise the calculation; it took five hours; I have spoken to Mr. Boole, but not before the contract was awarded.

EVIDENCE OF ISAAC C. LUDLUM.

I am City Surveyor.

The defence admitted that McCafferty was a competent contractor, and Mr. Ludlum was withdrawn.

EVIDENCE OF MR. M'CAFFERTY.

I have lived in New-York forty eight years, of which I was forty years a contractor here all the time; I know Mr. Develin; we put in two bids for the contract; I took the specifications as they were; I made no objection; it is unusual for contractors to dictate; we expected to do the work; we knew all about them, studied and calculated them.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lawrence—I did not see the Mayor nor any of the commissioners about the contract, except that I told Mr. Brennan I would be thankful if he would give me his vote; I asked Mr. Develin for information about security, &c.; did not ask him for his vote; we are friends; I know nothing against him; have never spoken to Mr. Boole.

EVIDENCE OF MR. CHAS. GUYDET.

I live in East 38th-street; I have lived here 13 years; have been on public works since 1844; my uncle and I introduced Belgian pavement; I never had business with these people before; I had been with Mr. Brown six years, from 1859 to February, 1865; I have worked under Croton Aqueduct Board; I know these gentlemen; I made an estimate for the contract and never complained of the specifications.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lawrence—I know Mr. Brennan, Mr. Boole, and Mr. Develin; I know Mr. Gunther; I don't consider him as one of the three; I never had a contract for cleaning the streets; I bid also for the Hackley contract; I have been in Europe, in Prussia; I have always resided here; I worked with Mr. Brown in contract work; we parted good friends.

Cross-examined by Mr. Graham—I employ Judge Emot and Mr. Waterbury.

EVIDENCE OF D. L. NORTHRUP.

I am Water and Sewer Commissioner of Brooklyn.

Counsel for defence admitted character and capacity and experience of Kingsley & Co., and Northrup was withdrawn.

McCafferty recalled—I know Brown, Knapp and Devoe; there was no bid returned to them.

Guydet recalled—I know Devoe and Knapp.

Q.—Are either of them contractors?

Mr. Graham—We object. It makes no difference who or what they are, unless they are corrupt. The wording of the act is explicit, that if the proposals are satisfactory, and the parties responsible, to them the contract must be awarded.

Answer—Mr. Knapp was not a contractor, but Mr. Devoe had some contract under Mr. Boole.

Cross-examined by Messrs. Lawrence and Graham—I have never been a street sweeper; Mr. Knapp was Street Commissioner; I never saw a Street Commissioner superintend his work.

EVIDENCE OF DANIEL E. BADGER.

I am President of Compost Company; we put in two bids for this work; I did not complain of the specifications; my impression is Judge Whiting did ask for modification.

The counsel for the prosecution had no further evidence ready, but expected some. Gov. Fenton after consulting a little with a few friends, Democratic and Republican, left the room for five minutes. The counsel for the defence chuckled audibly, and Mr. BOOLE seemed wonderfully tickled about the state of affairs. This sort of thing continued a half hour. The Governor returned; still no witnesses; it became embarassing—what should be done? Up rose the counsel for Mr. Boole, and

Mr. John Graham said—I would ask if we are not to have the pleasure of seeing the Hon. C. Godfrey Gunther upon the stand? Is he not to testify that he voted in favor of giving this contract to the lowest bidder?

Judge Emott—We consider that already in proof.

Mr. Graham—Only by Mr. Auld's impression. He might be mistaken on a point where his Honor's conscience would soon set us all right.

Judge Emott—If you can prove that Mr. Auld is mistaken we shall be happy to have you. May it please your Excellency we shall ask a few questions of another witness, and then ask an adjournment until to-morrow. We have a letter from Judge Whiting, stating that he is too ill to come into town to-day; he will be here to-morrow, and when his evidence is in we shall have closed our part of the case.

Mr. Brady—Then your Excellency will be immediately relieved, so far as I as counsel for Mr. Brennan am concerned. These parties have proven not one of the charges; we have denied them all, and sworn to the denial, and unless some further evidence is put in so far as am concerned not one word shall be said in reply.

Jude ALLEN and Mr. LAWRENCE respectively said the same.

After some discussion as to the possibility of getting Judge Whiting's testimony by a commission to-day, the Governor rose and adjourned the proceedings until to-day at 10 A. M.

Thus ends the second, and perhaps the final chapter of the great investigation.

The Election in Mississippi.

JACKSON, Miss., Tuesday, Oct. 3.

The election in this State passed off very quietly yesterday. The vote for Governor will be close between Judge FISHER and Gen. HUMPHREYS, though the returns from the southern portion of the State will probably secure the election of the former gentleman. Gen. HUMPHREYS is not eligible, not having been pardoned by the President, and it will be unfortunate for the State if he shall prove to be elected.

In places where local candidates have sprung the question of the admission of negro testimony in civil courts, the non-admission candidates have been successful, thus repudiating the late proclamation of Gov. SHARKEY to the effect that courts should receive negro evidence.

The returns come in slowly, there being but few mail routes established.

The Legislature will meet next Monday week, and many of the members will bring election tickets with their credentials. A general repudiation of everything looking toward the civilization of the negroes may be expected.

The Louisiana Democratic Convention.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, Oct. 3.

The Democratic Convention has organized and adopted a platform emphatically approving President JOHNSON's reorganization policy, excluding from the field of politics all religious and sectional controversies, holding that this government was made and is to be perpetuated for the exclusive political benefit of the white race, recommending the calling of a convention to adopt a constitution expressive of the will of the people, asking Congress for compensation for losses sustained by the emancipation policy; adverting to the repeal of acts and laws in conflict with the constitution and laws. The General Government is earnestly appealed to for a general amnesty and the prompt restoration of property, and the convention invites all citizens, without distinction of nationality, to join them in opposition to the radical Republican party. Twenty-seven parishes were represented in the convention.

The convention nominated J. M. WELLS for Governor, and H. A. P. PERHUE for Lieutenant-Governor, and adjourned sine die.

Arrival of an Embassy from Tunis.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

An embassy from the Bey of Tunis has arrived in this city, on its way to Washington. It consists of Gen. OTMAN HASHEM, an Aid-de-Damp, an interpreter and suite. The party is under the charge of Mr. PERRY, the United States Consul at Tunis.

Gen. HASHEM is the bearer of a letter of condolence to Mrs. LINCOLN, on the death of the late President, and also of a letter of felicitation to President JOHNSON, on the happy restoration of peace in this country.

The party are resting to-day from the fatigues of the voyage, and will proceed to Washington to-morrow

FROM PHILADELPHIA.

Alleged Expressions Made by Lieut.-Gen. Grant.

What He is Supposed to Have Said About Mexico.

He is Represented as a Very Extreme Monroe-Doctrine Man.

It is Stated that He Says that Maximilian will Leave Mexico.

Something to be Said and Done when Congress Meets.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

It is established beyond a doubt that in conversation with a distinguished Illinoisan a few days since, Lieut.-Gen. GRANT so far varied from his customary reticence on public topics as to unreservedly express himself on the Mexican question. He declares that the government will vindicate the Monroe doctrine at an early day, and that MAXIMILIAN must leave Mexico. It will be, he says, less expensive to rid Mexico of the presence of an enemy than to guard our borders against him. It is his opinion that it will require no call for troops, but that with our present army we can spare enough to give effectiveness to the forces Mexico will be ready to put in the field, if our government aids them in the matter of supplies. Gen. GRANT is of the opinion that the President and the authorities at Washington hold this as a settled purpose and only await the meeting of Congress to take open ground in the matter. It is not believed that France will be able to disregard European complications, present and prospective, so as to make the cause of MAXIMILIAN her own. This solution of the Mexican question must be accepted as one of the fourthcoming sensations of the close of the year.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Triennial Meeting of the General Convention at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

The General Convention of the Episcopal Church assembled in St. Luke's Church this morning. The interior of the church was draped in mourning, in respect to the memory of the late Bishop POTTER.

The sermon was preached by Dr. TULFORD, Lord Bishop of Montreal, from the first Corinthians, ninth chapter, twenty-second verse—"I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some."

All the Bishops of the Dioceses were present except Bishop WILLIAMS, of Connecticut, and Bishop SCOTT, of Oregon.

Bishop ATKINSON, of North Carolina, was seated in the body of the church.

After the sermon, Bishop STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, sent Dr. BALCH, the Secretary of the convention, to invite Bishop ATKINSON into the chancel.

Bishop ATKINSON accepted the invitation, and upon entering the chancel was cordially and kindly received by all the Bishops and clergy.

The holy communion service was then administered; at the conclusion both houses proceeded to organize.

Religious services being concluded, Rev. GEORGE M. RANDALL, D. D., of Boston, who was Secretary of the last house, called the body to order, asking the deputies to send to his table the testimonials of their election.

The dioceses were called over, beginning with Alabama, and ending with Western New-York.

The following nominations for President were made: Rev. JAMES CRAIK, diocese of Kentucky, President of the House of Deputies in 1862; Rev. Dr. GEO. M. RANDALL, diocese of Massachusetts; Rev. Dr. M. A. DE WOLFE HOWE, diocese of Pennsylvania.

A vote was ordered to be taken by dioceses and orders. Dr. CROOK was declared elected President, receiving fifteen clerical votes and the votes of thirteen dioceses.

Dr. RANDALL was elected Secretary by acclamation.

Rev. ROBERT CLARKSON, of Chicago, was appointed First Assistant Secretary, and Rev. WM. STEVENS PERRY, of Connecticut, Second Assistant Secretary.

Rev. Dr. MEAD and Hon. HORATIO SEYMOUR were appointed a committee to wait upon the House of Bishops and inform them that the house was organized.

The rules of order of the last House of Clerical and Lay Delegates were adopted as the rules of the present house, until otherwise ordered.

The President and Directors appointed the following standing committees: On the state of the Church, to consist of one member from each district; on the General Theological Seminary; on the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society; on the admission of new Dioceses; on the Consecration of Bishops; on Cannons; on Unfinished Business; on Elections, and on the Prayer-Book; each consisting of nine members.

A message was received from the House of Bishops, informing the House of its organization, and of the election of Rev. Dr. BALCH as Secretary.

On motion of Rev. Dr. MEAD, it was ordered that clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church and clergymen of the United Church of England and Ireland and of the British Colonies; also of the Episcopal Church of Scotland, who may be sojourning in this city, members of the Board of Missions and Protestant Episcopal Church Trustees, students and Professors of the General Theological Seminary, &c., be admitted to the sittings of this house. A resolution was adopted that writing members of the press occupy places on the floor of the house.

A resolution of thanks to the Lord Bishop of Montreal for his address was passed, and 1,500 copies of the address were ordered to be printed.

The convention adjourned to meet at 10 A. M. on Monday at St. Andrew's Church.

When the call of dioceses was made there was no answer from any of the Southern States except Texas, from which State several delegates were present. The whole body of the Southern dioceses is to be represented later in the convention by a committee of the Confederate Bishops to adjust the question of reunion.

From New-Orleans.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, Oct. 3.

The Times says Brevet Major-Gen. BRENT succeeds Mr. CONWAY, the Superintendent of the Freedmen of Louisiana.

The Mississippi election returns indicate the certain election of Gen. HUMPHREYS as Governor by a large majority.

Gen. GREGORY, Superintendent of the Freedmen's Bureau of Texas, made a speech to the negroes at Houston, assuring them that their rights should be respected, that they could hold property and would be governed by the same laws as the whites. He informed them that the military would compel them to abide by their contracts, and that they should not be a burden to the government.

The steamships George Cromwell, North Star and Atlantic, have arrived from New-York.

"Duke" GWIN and Ex-Gov. CLARKE, of Mississippi, have gone up the river under guard for Washington.

The report that Mr. CONWAY, Superintendent of Freedmen, has been superseded, is contradicted.

Texas advices say that large quantities of land have been purchased by a Polish agent in order to introduce a colony of Polish emigrants. The first colonization is expected to take place in December.

The Houston Telegraph says that burglaries and robberies continue in that place.

Liverpool advices of the 30th September, say that cotton is still coming in, and bringing full prices. The sales of the week were heavier than any time before since the revival of trade.

From Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Fenian Brotherhood took place to-night at the Court-house. Speeches were made and resolutions adopted. Great enthusiasm was manifested.

The trial of JOHN C. BRANE commenced to-day, but on account of the absence of the accused the court adjourned.

The Rights of Stage-Drivers and the Liabilities of Stage Companies.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM—OCT. 3.

Before Judge Cardoza and a Jury.

David Tillon vs. James Murphy and Hugh Smith.—The defendants, on the 3d day of January, 1863, were the owners of a certain line of stages, well known as the Wall-street Line. Early in the evening of that day, Mr. David Tilton was driving up Wall-street in his wagon, and, as the testimony showed, he was on the right hand side of the street, when, just as he crossed Broad-street, he was met by one of the defendants' stages, on the same side and going at a rapid rate. When the vehicles were quite near each other, the driver of the stage suddenly undertook to cross over, and, in doing so, the stage swung around, struck the plaintiff's wagon, upset it and threw plaintiff out. The result was that his shoulder was dislocated, and, as he claims, he was otherwise seriously injured in such a manner as to incapacitate him from attending to his usual avocations for a long time after. He now comes into court and claims damages against Messrs. Murphy & Smith for $5,000 for injuries he received in consequence of the gross and wanton recklessness of their driver. The facts as above stated, appeared from the testimony of the plaintiff and his witnesses. Plaintiff's counsel insisted that inasmuch as plaintiff was all the time on the right hand side of the street, it was clear that the accident occurred through no fault of his. The defendants' stage was on the wrong side, and when the driver saw that he was in danger of coming in collision, he undertook to get out of the plaintiff's way, in doing so he struck the wagon, and hence the damage to his client was caused. It was all the fault of the defendant's driver, he contended, and the plaintiff had come into court with clean hands. The driver was on the side of the street where by the laws of the State of New-York hë had no business. It was every driver's duty to keep on the right hand side of the street or road.

The defendants offered no evidence to contradict the plaintiff's witnesses. They submitted the case to the jury under the direction of the court as to the law governing such cases.

The court said to the jury, in substance, that there seemed to be some doubt as to whether or not the plaintiff stopped his wagon before the collision occurred. If there was any negligence on the part of the plaintiff he could not recover. The law was well settled in such cases, that if the plaintiff's negligence in any degree contributed to produce the result complained of, the defendants were not liable. The law relating to drivers taking the right hand side of the street, did not relieve the plaintiff from the duty of exercising all proper care and caution in reference to himself and vehicle. If the jury thought the plaintiff was free from negligence then they could award him such damages as they in their discretion thought he was entitled to. The jury after a short deliberation rendered a verdict for the plaintiff of $250.

The Attachments in the Ketchum Case—A Motion made to Discharge Them.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—OCT. 3.

Before Justice Ingraham.

Morris Ketchum et. al. vs. E. B. Ketchum; Wm. B. Isham and Samuel M. Gallop vs. E. B. Ketchum et. al. and C. R. Isham et. al. vs. E. B. Ketchum et. al.—These three actions were all commenced by attachments on the 15th day of August last, a day or two subsequent to the discovery of young Ketchum's defalcations. The one first above entitled was commenced earlier on the day named than were the other two. Yesterday a motion was made to set aside the attachments in the second and third suits, in order that execution might proceed against the property of E. B. Ketchum, and in favor of his former partners.

It appeared that no defence had been interposed in either case, and that judgment had been entered up in all of them, the first one being for the sum of $434,000 in favor of the former partners. It was stated in the judgment roll in this case that Edward B. Ketchum was indebted to his old partners in the sum of $434,000, over and above what stood to his credit on the books of the firm; that he had abstracted $500,000 of the assets of the firm, and that he had stolen $1,313,000 in securities belonging to other parties, for which the firm was liable. It also appeared that there were no written articles of copartnership existing between the members of the firm, but that Edward B. Ketchum's share of the profits was one-eighth.

It was moved to set aside the two attachments in the Isham suits on the ground that the partners were the first attaching creditors.

In opposition, it was urged that the questions involved were not those which went to the jurisdiction, but simply as to the irregularity of the proceedings. The motions were furthermore opposed, for the reason that a partner or partners could not attach the property of an absconding copartner on an unliquidated account; and it was shown that at the time the attachment was granted the remaining partners were ignorant as to how much had been abstracted by E. B. Ketchum, and the attachment could not be for an indefinite and unsettled account.

The court took the papers, and reserved its decision.

For the application, Messrs. Tracy and Nelson; opposed, Mr. Francis N. Bangs.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 4—P. M.

The price of Gold rose suddenly to 146@146⅛ ℘ cent. this forenoon, but subsequently fell back to 145⅞ ℘ cent., establishing an advance of 1 ℘ cent. on Tuesday's highest sales. The Speculators in the Gold Room have not enjoyed so animated a market for two months past. They were not disposed, however, to push their good fortune in advancing the price to extremes, knowing that the Government holds in reserve over thirty millions of dollars, after providing for the November Gold Interest on the Public Debt, the whole or any part of which could be sold in the open market if needful. The rates of Exchange for the Cunard steamer closed at 1 o'clock at 109⅝@109⅞ ℘ cent. The supply of Bills on London within this quotation was quite ample, and the Cotton advices by the Persia this morning lead to the belief that the export movement of this staple will soon furnish a large sum of Exchange. The purchases yesterday and today for export are understood to be considerable. The Customs demand for Gold this week promises nearly $3,000,000 into the Treasury Office, while the payments out for Gold Interest will scarcely exceed $1,500,000.

The market for Money works with much ease, and no signs are yet apparent of the adverse influence of the proposals of the Treasury to fund $50,000,000 of Compound Legal-Tender. The Stock Brokers are borrowing at 5@6 per cent., and the Discount Brokers place prime paper at 6½@7½ per cent. per annum. Thus far the notifications for funding Compound Legal-Tender into U. S. 5-20's, from this City, amount to $8,000,000 or $9,000,000.

At the Stock Exchange, the prices for U. S. Gold-bearing Stocks are firm, partly on the advices from London, of U. S. 5-20s, old, at 68½@69 per cent. Sterling Money. In the Railway speculation an extraordinary buoyancy was manifest at an early hour in Michigan Southern Shares. The price rapidly advanced from 76 to 83 per cent. for the cash Stock, which had to be delivered by 2:15 P. M. There was an advanced movement also in the other Western Roads and in New-York Central and Erie, and the excitement to buy was altogether ahead of any demand previously witnessed since the middle of August.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the excitement is quite general in the Railway market, and firm on Government Stocks, especially the old 5-20s, which are wanted at 103 ¼ ℘ cent. The rumored "corner" in Michigan Southern Stock to-day, if really intended by the Bulls in the movement, appears to hold good to the close of the market. The last sales at the Stock Board, at 2:30 P. M., were at 80 ℘ cent., as against 83 for the cash Stock at 2 o'clock. At 4 o'clock the price is again up to 82¼ ℘ cent. The price of Gold was advanced to 146⅜, and then fell back to 146¼ ℘ cent.

The mail by the Persia this morning brought advices that the new Erie Railway Convertible Loan for £800,000, (say £400,000 to be paid for at once, and £400,000 by way of option to the takers,) has been completed in London, through Messrs. MCKENZIE, (Manager for the General Credit Association,) JUNIUS S. MORGAN & CO., STERN BROTHERS, SPEYER BROTHERS, and RAPHAEL & SONS. The Loan runs to 1875, (ten years;) principal and interest in Sterling Money, and the Bonds convertible into the business shares of the Company. There is a Sinking Fund to the Loan, the Bonds for which are to be drawn annually by their numbers. The Erie Company, we understand, realize about 68 ℘ cent. net, Sterling Money, (equal to 107 ℘ cent. of our Currency,) while the great promoters of the Loan in London have placed it with the English public at 75 ℘ cent., on which advanced or programme rate a premium was being paid when the Persia sailed.

The monthly issues of Compound Interest Notes, in 1864, and the proportion of each to 31st October, we derive as follows from the schedules of the public debt, issued from the Treasury Department, to which we add the subsequent increase:

The movements in Breadstuffs, during past fortnight, Mr. EDWARD BILL notices thus: "The market for Flour has lately assumed a much firmer aspect. Prices have fluctuated during the fortnight past; under less favorable English advices and fair receipts, the disposition to purchase for future delivery has been checked. All the choice and extra family grades made from Winter Wheat are in light stock and supply, and are held with great firmness at a considerable advance on prices current at the date of my last report. For export to Dngland there is but little demand at present rates, but for the British Provinces and the local trade there is some activity. Southern and Canadian grades have participated in the improvement. The injury to the crop of Winter Wheat, throughout a large portion of the Western States, is now ascertained to be fully as great as was feared some time since, and a consequent advance in value has been realized, not only on that description, but also on the Spring quality, of which a larger portion will be needed for home consumption. Indian Corn is in request for export, but prices are rather above the views of shippers, and that, with the difficulty of procuring a sound article, checks the demand. Rye is inactive, but firm. Oats are irregular in price, with a moderate demand. The export clearances from this port for the fortnight foot up: To Great Britain and Ireland, 1,062 bbls. Flour, 80,048 bushels Wheat, 335,558 bushels Corn, 2,050 bushels Peas; to Continental ports, 1,550 bushels Rye; to Mexico, 711 bbls. Flour, 1,665 bushels Corn, 1,514 bushels Oats; to Brazil, 2,002 bbls. Flour; to all other ports, 57,926 bbls. Flour, 135 bbls. Rye Flour, 3,253 bbls. Corn Meal, 11,044 bushels Corn, 2,400 bushels Oats, 3,000 bushels Peas—making a total to all ports of 61,701 bbls. Flour, 135 bbls. Rye Flour, 3,253 bbls. Corn Meal, 80,048 bushels Wheat, 348,267 bushels Corn, 1,550 bushels Rye, 3,914 bushels Oats, and 5,050 bushels Peas.

TOBACCO—Is in demand and steady. Sales since our last 311 hhds. Kentucky at 9c.@29c.; 116 boxes Seedleaf at 7½c.@42c.; 74 bales Havana on private terms. The movements in Tobacco during the past month Messrs. M. RADER & SON thus notice: "The transactions of the last month presented no particularly striking features, being in most instances, with a steady demand, at pretty uniformly maintained prices. The sales amounted to 7,500 hhds., of which our home manufacturers took about 1,800 hhds., paying for yellow and light colory sorts very high figures. A speculative movement in ordinary grades absorbed about 1,200 hhds., likely to appear again on the market some future day, and so far as we can see no elements to create a decided speculative feeling, as all apprehensions of further injury to the present crop have disappeared; and although the quantity grown this season may be restricted to last year's light average, it is the general impression among buyers that, with the large stocks still remaining undisposed of in Europe and on this continent, the supply will be amply sufficient for all practical purposes. Holders of the better and substantial grades, however, continue to hold firmly for full prices, as the supplies of those sorts are expected to fall much short of former seasons. Receipts at this port compare with last year's as follows: Receipts for September, 1865, 12,144 hhds.; total receipts to date, 65,433 hhds. Receipts for September, 1864, 26,299 hhds.; total to 1st September, 1864, 107,621 hhds. We have no change to note in our quotations: Sound Lugs, 5c.@8½c., in gold; Common Leaf, 6½c.@12c.; Medium Leaf, 8c.@14c.; Good Leaf, 9½c.@17c.; Fine Leaf, 12c.@19c.; Selections, 15c.@22c. Receipts of Virginia Leaf have been 2,086 hhds., leaf and stems, the greater part of which were sold for export and consumption at prices similar to corresponding qualities in Kentucky. It is only here and there that some fine, lively samples appear, for which very full prices were paid; in most instances the article is superannuated or in bad condition, and therefore not so much sought after as, after its long absence, was expected. For Spanish Tobacco the demand has been only moderate, owing to the absence of desirable goods. The sales have been 2,800 bales Havana fillers at 70c.@95c. ℘ lb., duty paid, and about 800 bales for export at 8c.@12c., gold, in bond. Seventy-two bales Yara, assorted, at 90c.@$1 ℘ lb., duty paid, for old crop. Our stock of Yara is reduced by the loss of 250 bales by fire. These lots consisted mainly of new crop, which thus far have not been very saleable. Seedleaf Tobacco has been less inquired for than the previous months; the speculation for home trade having ceased, while prices are too high for export. Connecticut fillers have alone experienced some movement, and several lots changed hands at advanced quotations. Fine wrappers are in moderate request and at full prices. Of New-York and Pennsylvania the sales have been light at former prices, while of Ohio several lots of new crop are offering, but in most instances beyond the views of exporters. Great complaints have of late been made about the incompleteness of the present mode of sampling, and a desire to have cases stripped and inspected, on the same principle as tobacco in hogsheads, has been generally advocated by buyers, but as yet without any definite result. Our quotations for Seedleaf are: Fillers, Connecticut, 8c.@10.; Binders, 12c.@18c.; Medium Wrappers, 20c.@35c.; Fine Wrappers, 40c.@50c.; Fillers, New-York, 4c.@6c.; Binders, 7c.@10c.; Medium Wrappers, 13c.@18c.; Fine Wrappers, 20c.@30c.; Fillers, Pennsylvania, 4c.@6c.; Binders, 7c.@10c.; Medium Wrappers, 12c.@15c.; Fine Wrappers, 18c.@25c.; Fillers, Ohio, 4c.@6c.; Binders, 7c.@10c.; Medium Wrappers, 12c.@15c.; Fine Wrappers, 16c.@25. Manufactured Tobacco continues very active, with an advance in prices on better grades. The arrivals for the month have been: From Southern States, 11,029 pkgs.; from Baltimore, 1,832 pkgs.; from the West, 340 pkgs.; total, 13,201 pkgs. The receipts from Virginia are more satisfactory, consisting of late of new-made goods, which have sold readily at full and paying prices. The demand for these sorts can be relied on for some time to come providing manufacturers will avoid working up funky and deteriorated leaf, which has been the case in some few instances. The principal demand for the month was for good black work of all descriptions and for sound bright Virginia lbs. and ½ lbs., whilst the common and out of condition sorts have been somewhat neglected. For export a fair demand for 10s and ½ lbs. existed, particularly for bright and black work of the latter sort. We quote: Black work, unsound, Western and City, 24c.@40c., tax paid; Virginia, 10c.@30c., tax free or paid; black work, sound, Western and City, 45c.@70c., tax paid; Virginia, 40c.@65c., tax free or paid; bright work, unsound, Western and City, 35c.@60c., tax paid; Virginia, 20c.@40c., tax free or paid; bright work, sound, Western and City, 60c.@$1, tax paid; Virginia, 50c.@$1 10, tax free or paid; bright work, sound, Western and City, 40c.@60c., in bond; Virginia, 35c.@65c., in bond; black work, sound, Western and City, 18c.@40c., in bond; Virginia, 15c.@40c., in bond; negro-head and twist, sound, Western and City, 18c.@45c., in bond; Virginia, 15c.@45c., in bond.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

GENERAL NEWS.

Commissioner Newton has issued his report for the month just closed. It relates chiefly to farm stock. In the summary he states that the average amounts consumed in great Britain and Ireland is about 56,000,000 of bushels more than produced. The deficit of this year will then make it about one-third greater, or 72,600,000 bushels. It may, however, be much greater. The immense corn crop of this country, now safely grown, will enable us to ship largely of wheat to foreign countries, although the wheat crop has been injured fully as much as reported in the last monthly, and the quality of the new crop is not good in many States. The amount of old wheat will not be as great as anticipated. The buckwheat and potato crops may be very large, but the danger of the rot is too imminent to base any calculations upon the latter crop.

Dick Turner, who has been confined in the Libby Prison, Castle Thunder and State Penitentiary, Richmond, ever since the evacuation, upon the charge of maltreating United States prisoners, has engaged the services of Marmaduke Johnson, Esq., as his counsel, and that gentleman expresses strong hopes of being able to disprove the charges against his client. Turner was visited by Mr. Johnson on Saturday last, when a general conversation ensued relative to his approaching trial. So says the Richmond Times, the secession journal.

Edmund Castillon, J. Henry Tingley and George S. Bethel, have been brought before Alderman Beitler, of Philadelphia, on the complaint of Alexander Janney, who deposed that they as corporators of the Imperial and Kanawha Valley Oil Company, with others, made, circulated and published written and printed statements of said company, knowing them to be false, with intent to induce deponent and others to become shareholders in said company, with intent to deceive and defraud.

The court-martial in the case of Brevet Brig.-Gen. Briscoe, of the One Hundred and Ninety-ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers, who was arrested at Lynchburgh on Friday last, convened at Washington yesterday. He is charged with having abstracted from the United States a bar of gold bullion valued at over $1,100, a package of gold coin valued at $1,000, and silver coin valued at $250, and with conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline. Ex-Gov. Ford, of Ohio, appears in behalf of Gen. Briscoe.

A dispatch from Philadelphia says that Gen. Grant, in conversation with a distinguished member of Illinois, has spoken very fully and freely upon Mexican affairs, saying as much as that Mr. Maximilian would very soon take his departure, and that the Monroe Doctrine, pure and simple, would be enforced to the fullest extent. When Congress meets, so goes the Philadelphia dispatch, there will be something done.

The railroad Presidents, representing the Ohio and Mississippi, Little Miami, Ohio Central, Pennsylvania Central, and other railroads, who went on an excursion to Lawrence, Kansas, a few days ago, have engaged to construct sixty miles of the Union Pacific Road, west of Lawrence, by the first of next May. Seven miles of the track are already completed west of Lawrence, and cars will run to Topeka in November.

The Lynchburgh Republican states that the famous ex-rebel Gen. Wm. Mahone has been appointed General Superintendent of the Norfolk and Petersburgh and the South Side Railroads. Gen. Mahone is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, and before the war held the position of President and Superintendent of the Norfolk and Petersburgh Railroad. The Petersburgh Express doubts the statement of the Republican.

The Boston Post says that some twenty housekeepers at the South End, after comparing market accounts, have come to the determination to dispense with the use of butter, with the exception of one pound a week for each family, until it can be purchased for thirty cents a pound. If such a movement was generally adopted, it would insure a reduced price of butter.

Andrew Jackson Donelson has written a letter, in which he professes himself much pleased with the working of the paid labor system in Mississippi. He says companies are forming and paying as high as $15 per acre rent for open lands on the Mississippi. It is also believed negro laborers will build up the levee.

The American song of "Old John Brown" has been devoted to a new purpose in Ireland. A Fenian song now popular in Ireland asserts that "John Brown's Knapsack was No. '98," thus reviving the memory of the movement of '98 and the American war in the mind of the hearer.

An equestrian statute in memory of the late Col. Robert G. Shaw, of the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts Regiment, is talked of at Boston, and a meeting in sympathy with the movement will be held, on Saturday next, in the Governor's Rooms at the State House.

The issue of £800,000 sterling bonds by the Erie Railroad Company is officially announced by Morgan & Co., of London. The subscription price is 75, redeemable at par in ten years, with interest at 6 per cent. The bonds are convertible at any time into stock at the owner's option.

Over 300 bales of cotton were burned at Memphis on Sunday. They were owned by Him & Clarkson, Harris & Wormly, and the United States Government. The private cotton was insured. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

The Liverpool Telegraph, of Sept. 22, published a report that the American bark Hannah G. was overhauled while on her voyage from Cardenas to Liverpool by an armed screw steamer carrying the Fenian flag. Of course the story was a ridiculous hoax.

A ten-inch Dahlgren gun was taken to the Rip-Raps yesterday. It is designed for testing the strength of the casemates in Fort Wood.

It is reported that Ralph Waldo Emerson lost his entire property by the Concord Bank robbery, except his homestead.

The trial of Hon. Emerson Etheridge was to commence at Columbus, Ky., yesterday.

An easterly rain storm commenced at Boston yesterday afternoon.

LOCAL NEWS.

Commissioners Acton, Bergen and McMurray, at Police Trials, yesterday, listened to eighty-eight complaints against officers of the Metropolitan Police force. Only one was for a capital offence, namely, drunkenness. A charge against Capt. Charles Ulman, alleging that he and Sergt. Ahearn had conspired to rob an inebriated soldier, and a charge alleging that Capt. Nathaniel R. Mills had kicked a person whom he had ordered to go on, were overthrown by testimony. Mr. Hawks, landlord of the St. Nicholas Hotel, was a witness in the case.

At a Union Mass Meeting at Hoboken last evening, in order to ratify the nomination of Marcus L. Ward, for Governor of New-Jersey, speeches were made by Gen. Kilpatrick, Gen. Littlefield, Gen. Swift, and the Hon. Albert Davison. A large number of people were in attendance and the proceedings were enlivened by singing from the New-York Union Glee Club.

The Board of Education, last evening, voted to exclude the children of non-residents from our schools. The session was long and wordy, and the time was so well filled that the hour of limitation had arrived before the Commissioners reached the subject of the Transcript advertising of their speeches, resolutions, &c., at fifteen cents a line.

In the case of William A. Sale and others against the Sun Insurance Company, which has been on trial for the last three days in the Supreme Court, Part 2, before Justice Barbour, the jury yesterday rendered a verdict of $7,761 68 for the plaintiff, and on motion of plaintiff's counsel the court granted an extra allowance of $200.

The two upper stories of Mr. George Copeland's cotton warehouse, at No. 155 Water-street, were consumed yesterday at noon.

Flour and grain were in good demand and buoyant yesterday. A brisk business was transacted in cotton at much higher rates. Provisions, groceries, hay, leather, wool and tobacco were in fair request. Freights were quiet, with 493 vessels of all classes in port.

There was great excitement in the railway market yesterday, and a rise of 4@6 ℔ cent. in several of the Western roads, and 2 ℔ cent. on Erie. Government stocks firm. Gold 146¼. Money easy at 5@6 ℔ cent. to the stock brokers.

Economy, Retrenchment and Honesty—The Republican Record.

The splendid exhibit of the condition of our national finances which has just been given, has been made possible, we should not fail to remember, by the prompt and energetic action of the War and Navy Departments, in reducing the size of our public establishments, and curtailing expenses in every possible manner. Officers of all grades have been dismissed as rapidly as their services could be dispensed with; regiments have been disbanded as quickly as the orders could be made out; vessels have been put out of commission and sold as fast as the necessary labor could be accomplished; provost-marshals and courts have been abolished as speedily as affairs would allow; and all the vast machinery of war has been done away with, even before the people have fairly realized that the war itself is over. In all this, we have heard no accusations of favoritism to parties or individuals; and it seems almost incredible that throughout, there should have been developed such an extremely small amount of cheating, swindling or peculation.

On this latter point, indeed, the government has been marvelously fortunate. Though many hundreds of millions of dollars have been disbursed since the close of the war, the whole matter and all its details have been so carefully and honestly managed that even the enemies of the administration have failed to bring forward accusations of dishonesty or wrong. This is doubtless in great measure due to the inflexible uprightness of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, and to the intelligent carefulness of their subordinates. It is assuredly a record of which the Republican party may well be proud, and on the strength of which it can rely for popular support, now and hereafter.

The Alarming Increase in the Price of Coal.—At an auction of coal yesterday, by wholesale, the prices realized, convey an alarming intimation to the multitude of poor consumers, of the Winter prospect before them. The lowest rates at the sale were a fraction under $11 a ton. While a large quantity of stove coal went off at $12. The average increase since the middle of July is about $4 50 a ton. The purchasers yesterday seemed to thing themselves fortunate in making the bargain they did. It will not be much consolation for those who are still without their Winter supply, to learn that the subscribers to some of the mutual companies organized for the protection of consumers, can, to-day, lay in a full stock for the season at about $6 a ton. Such is the actual fact. And it is clear that the public have not been fully aroused to the necessity of meeting trade combinations by counter combinations. This coal question brings the matter of coöperation into strong relief.

Gen. Slocum's Speech.

The Democratic candidate for Secretary of State has made a Speech at Syracuse, which we transfer to our columns that our readers may see for themselves what reasons he offers for allowing himself, a Republican and a soldier of the Union, to be used to draw votes to the Democrats and men opposed to the war. A painful interest attaches to this deflection, not to say defection, of one who has in the past made for himself so honorable a record. This speech will do nothing to abate it.

When any man suddenly suffers himself to be made a candidate for office by a party to which he was always opposed, he must stand upon his rendered reasons, or else incur the charge of having been seduced by a hope of personal gain. The people whose support he seeks have a right to the most distinct explanations. We look for them in this speech in vain. A considerable part of it is made up of generalities which have nothing to do with any political issue or party policy—a mere glorification of the war, and of its leading Generals. Another portion is devoted to a very unsatisfactory explanation of the countermand of his orders in Mississippi by the President, and of his resignation of his command. The remainder is a miserably halting attempt to define his position as distinguished from that of his old associates.

As regards his difference with Gov. Sharkey and the President, he gives the public to understand that he stopped the organization of the State militia against his own inclinations, and only because such action on his part was required by the spirit of his instructions from the War Department. Now it happens that the general orders of Gen. Slocum arresting the organization of the Mississippi militia, were published at the time in full. We gave the document bodily on the 7th of last month, it was dated on the 24th of August. Gen. Slocum used this language therein:

> "To permit the young men who have so distinguished themselves to be armed and organized independently of United States military officers on duty here, and to allow them to operate in counties now garrisoned by colored troops, filled, as many of these men are, not only with prejudice against those troops, and against the execution of orders relative to freedmen, but even against our government itself, would bring about a collision at once, and increase in a tenfold degree the difficulties that now beset the people."

In such emphatic terms did Gen. Slocum express his inability to allow the organization of the militia; and yet now he declares that he was all the time in favor of allowing that organization. The President sustained Gov. Sharkey instead of Gen. Slocum, and permitted the organization of the militia to go on; and that, too, without withdrawing the national forces from the State. These forces are still there, and for the present will remain there, without any such "collision" as Gen. Slocum declared would be brought about "at once." The pretence that the President and he did not differ is disproved by the documentary record, and is not worthy of the frankness of a soldier.

Yet it is in keeping with his pretense that he has accepted the position of a Democratic candidate by virtue of his being a supporter of President Johnson's policy. In the first place, according to his own showing, he does not support that policy. He declares himself to be for the abolition of the Freedmen's bureau, and for the absolute relegation of all power over the blacks to the States in which they live. Now, whether that policy be the true one or not, Gen. Slocum has no right to assume that it is the policy of President Johnson. Not one syllable has the President ever written or spoken that goes to indicate that he intends any such abandonment of the freedmen. The fact that he gives the Freedmen's Bureau every means and appliance for effectually accomplishing its ends, is practical evidence that he approves of the bureau and its objects. There either is no value in human testimony, or the administration of that bureau has been, and still is, of immense service in protecting the freedmen. Gen. Slocum himself, in his general orders, from which we have already quoted, bears witness to the necessity of this protection. He said:

> "It is a remarkable fact that most of the outrages have been committed against Northern men, government couriers, and colored people. Southern citizens have been halted by these outlaws, but at once released and informed that they have been stopped by mistake; and these citizens have refused to give information as to the parties by whom they were halted, although frankly acknowledging that they knew them."

Gen. Slocum has a perfect right to adapt himself to his new party connections, if he pleases; but he has no right to impute to President Johnson any other policy toward the freedmen than that which the President practically maintains.

This new-fledged Democrat throws out, in a very indefinite way, that his old associates do not sustain the President's policy. His argument is that somebody—he does not tell who—said that in the Republican Convention: "but for lack of adhesion and discipline among the radicals, a resolution would, probably, have been adopted, virtually condemning the policy of the President." It is humiliating to see a soldier, who has done his country manly service, indulging in peurilities like this. Why will Gen. Slocum thus trifle with his fair fame? The public cares nothing about what somebody said the minority in that convention might, could, would, or should have done, had it been stronger. What the public would like to know is why Gen. Slocum went over to the Democratic camp. It wants substantial reasons instead of this idle hearsay which is without truth, and which, even if it had been true, would have afforded no reason. The resolutions of the Republican Convention were passed unanimously. They unqualifiedly approve the past course of President Johnson, and explicitly pledge to him continued and hearty support. If there were malcontents in the convention they did not make themselves heard and were not known. The convention acted as a unit, just as the party acted as a unit in carrying the country through the dread trials of the war. If Gen. Slocum chooses, on such flimsy reasons, to go over to the party which has made itself historically infamous for its endeavors to balk the war, let him go in peace. But it is a pity that he should make such sale of his laurels.

Education for the Poor Whites of the South.

There is no subject more worthy of the attention of the people of the North and of the South at the present time than a consideration of the best means for instructing and elevating the poor whites of the Southern States. In view of the changed condition which the freedmen hold to their late masters, it is a subject which will receive more attention from the educated classes of the South than it ever has heretofore. From all the statistics gathered previous to the rebellion, and during its existence, it is evident that there has never been, in any other portion of the country, a class of people more utterly destitute of all the means for obtaining a knowledge of the most simple and common rudiments of education.

It is needless for us to argue the necessity of a change in this condition of things, or to show what would be the result of such an altered state in the moral and political complexion of the South. Our object is simply to suggest what we believe to be a practical as well as necessary scheme for their moral and educational advancement. Our readers are aware that in many of our most populous Northern cities schools have been opened in the poorest quarters, sustained by benevolent persons, the design of which is to draw in those who seem to be without the pale of our public schools. These are termed industrial schools. Why might not a similar plan be adopted for educating the poor whites of the South? Let a society embracing prominent philanthropic men in the South as well as in other portions of the country be organized, having for its object the employment of ladies of the best culture and the opening of industrial schools where the population is most dense and where the greatest amount of ignorance and moral desolation prevails. That such schools are absolutely necessary for this class, any one at all acquainted with their condition must admit. Those who have given the subject the most careful examination tell us that vice and licentiousness in its lowest forms prevail among them to a fearful extent, that their ignorance is most profound, and that their indolence is of so stolid a character that they seem unable to raise themselves out of their present degraded condition.

What then would be the training which the children and even adults could receive in such schools? First, cleanliness of person and dress, a high standard of morals, some industrial pursuit for the females, and as is done in this city, the boys and young men might also receive instruction in some trade or handicraft, and at the same time while being taught to be virtuous and useful they could be receiving all the elements of a good common school education.

A proper division of time is all that is necessary to carry into practice the system which we have thus briefly outlined. To make schools based on such a plan successful, two or three things are requisite—a high order of intellectual talent and warm moral sensibilities in the teacher, a profound sense of the importance of the work and indomitable perseverance. Now while so much is being done for the good of the black race, might we not at the same time bestow some thought upon plans which may be made both simple and practical for the elevation of our white brethren in the South, and in the successful prosecution of which men of all shades and parties, North and South East and West, could unite? Surely this would be more honorable work than sneering, as a morning journal does, at the "poor whites," as a class hopelessly degraded, even below the lowest African grade at the South.

The True Way.—We do not hear anything now-a-days of any of the stupendous schemes that were in vogue a few months ago, for paying off, at one stroke, the national debt. But we hear of something much more promising. Without any of these schemes, the great work has been begun, as appears from the just-published Treasury statement, by reducing the debt twelve and three quarter millions within a month. If, says a Philadelphia paper, we can do as well in every month as in September, we shall reduce our debt one hundred and fifty millions a year, at which rate we could entirely rid ourselves of the national burden within a score of years. The regular revenues are rising in amount, and must continue to do so from causes now in active operation; and thus the surplus applicable to the extinguishment of the debt is augmenting and will augment.

Mischievous Inventions.—Under the head of its Washington correspondence, the Tribune of yesterday has the following:

> "It is confidently believed by persons in high official position, that a formidable combination exists to force through Congress a bill for at least a partial assumption of the rebel debt."

It is impossible to say what "persons in high official position" may or may not "confidently believe:"—but we do not believe that any body of ordinary common sense believes in the existence of any such combination. There is not a member of Congress from any loyal State, of any party, who would think for an instant of voting for any such thing,—nor will there be for the next fifty years. The people of this country have got all the debt they care about paying already,—and they are no more likely to vote for assuming any more, than they are to vote for reëstablishing slavery. They will pay the debts incurred for saving the Union, but none incurred in the effort to destroy it. Nor do we believe the South will ask or expect anything of the kind.

This story seems to be thrown out by the Tribune's Washington correspondence for the purpose of promoting distrust of the Southern States. It belongs to the same category of mischievous sensations as the report started not long ago in the same quarter, of a "formidable combination" to make a New-York member of Congress Speaker of the House by corrupt means. It is a very paltry way of playing upon public credulity, discreditable to those who adopt it, alike as politicians and as journalists.

The Two Races in the South.—The future happiness of the Southern negroes depends so largely upon their being able to maintain amicable and profitable relations with those who formerly stood in the relationship of masters to them, and who yet are, and for a long time will remain, the principal holders of real estate and owners of capital, that we have frequently taken occasion to deprecate every scheme which had a tendency to stir up animosities of race or collisions of interest. The Southern whites will inevitably control the labor and the fortunes of the blacks for many years to come, and in all the daily affairs of life, will exercise an immediate and controlling power. The blacks will constitute a great population of subordinate laborers, making continual advances in well-being and intelligence, or else will retrogade into a condition worse in many respects than the bondage from which they have been emancipated. Which of these fortunes is in store for the Southern negro, depends more upon the whites of the South than upon anything that can be said or done in the North.

We have chronicled in our columns many instances in which the most desirable relations, in every respect, have been established between bodies of freedmen and their former masters. One of our correspondents in West Tennessee mentions a case which we are glad to believe is not an isolated one in that section of country, but which offers an example worthy of being widely followed:

> "Col. Travis was a prominent politician and lawyer. He had a fine farm, with thirty slaves. When the rebellion commenced, he raised a regiment, and served till the close of the war. He is a ruined man, excepting his lands. With a trunk-full of rights, in the shape of $65,000 worth of Confederate bonds, he says he is satisfied for the balance of his days. His slaves all stayed at home but two young men, who entered our army. On his return (he surrendered with Johnston) he called the negroes together and told them they were all free; that they became so as the result of the defeat of the South; that they were as free as himself; that as they had stayed at home and helped to take care of his family, he proposed to do the best he could by them, if they wished to stay. This year they were all poor together, and all would share alike. Next year he proposed to rent his farm to them on shares.
> This plan the Colonel is carrying out in good faith. The first step he took shows his knowledge of the difference under the slave system. The negroes lived in quarters, near the "big house," and under the master's eye. Col. Travis says this must be discontinued. He has seven hundred acres in his home farm. About six families of negroes live in quarters. He is building cabins at convenient points on the place, and allotting them to the family he thinks can conveniently cultivate the unit of land to which he is contiguous. He is doing this on the principle that the freed people must be isolated and made self-reliant. He lets his land on shares. One-third of the crop is rent for land, one-third for tools, subsistence, stock and forage, and one-third for labor. If the laborer furnished himself, and the tools, &c., he gets two-thirds. If part of these necessaries, one-half. Some of Col. Travis' people have stock of their own, and between the landlord and tenant, enough will be had to cultivate the farm effectually. Col. Travis is confident that, so far as he is concerned, he will get a good return from his land without so much labor as formerly; he believes the people will do well for themselves, for he says they have always been faithful to him."

A God-Send for the British Journalists.—Doubtless one of the principal causes of the prominence given to the Fenian movement in the British press is the dearth of political or party excitement in other quarters. The reaction from the brief turmoil of the general election was peculiarly visible in the flatness of the English journals for several weeks before the Fenians came to the rescue. The British press had usually a hard struggle with dullness during what the Saturday Review calls "the silly season"—when Parliament is not in session, and when the most sensational features of the day's news are a four-column literary review in the Times, or an agricultural speech by a rural M. P. The election this year reduced the term of general stagnation by several weeks. But the conflict was so decisive in its results that it left nothing to speculate upon as to the future of the rival parties. Continental politics, moreover, are dull beyond all precedent. In the Summer of 1864, the Danish invasion furnished fresh matter of tragic interest every day for months. And overshadowing every other cotemporary event, there were the daily bulletins of the struggle in this country, sufficient alone, if intelligently discussed by the British and European press, to feed the utmost craving of the public appetite for news. All these extraneous sources of supply have now been drained out. The Gastein Convention, with its coolly barbarous disposition of the Principalities, does not supply the place in public interest of the butcheries at Duppel. And the progress of reconstruction in this country does not compensate for the loss of the war news budget sent hence by each Atlantic steamer. There is absolute dearth in every civilized quarter of the world where gleanings of news were formerly available for the British journalist. The Fenians, at such a juncture, have proved a god-send. Narrowly looked into, their movements and the movements against them present as much of broad farce as of genuine sensation. But no generous looker-on will begrudge the British newsman the privilege of making the most of his subject, now that it has so luckily turned up.

Amusements.

Academy of Music.—There are rare occasions when the entire musical forces of the Academy seem to move of themselves, by an impulse alike irresistable and charming. This was certainly the case last evening when "Ernani"—fullest blooded of all Verdi's operas—was played for the first time this season. We cannot remember to have heard the work better performed. The ensembles were admirable, and the singers without exception were in their best voice. Mlle. Zucchi, who so far has been under the weather, shone forth last evening in pristine splendor. Her voice was grand and profuse, and her acting perfectly fine. The new tenor Signor Irfre appeared to great advantage in the title-role. He has a voice and style which improve rapidly on acquaintance, but we cannot help suggesting that if the gentleman would drag the time less frequently, it would not detract from the meritorious vigor and earnestness of his singing. Signor Antonucci, as Silva, revealed the quality and capacity of his voice finely in the Infelice, which has not been sung so well since the best days of Marini. The part of Don Carlos was sustained on the occasion by Signor Marra, who made his first appearance, and achieved a marked and merited success. He has a fine baritone, full and sympathetic in quality, and of ample power even for the discouraging dimensions of the Academy—which, by the way, he did not seem to estimate accurately, and in consequence slightly over-exerted himself to his own prejudice. Signor Marra's style is large and dramatic, and his ease on the stage and in the delivery of his voice indicate that he has had abundant experience. The début was a complete success—perhaps the most prompt and unequivocal of the season.

The applause during the evening was incessant, and led to many repetitions. The very large audience was not only satisfied but delighted. It was certainly the most enthusiastic one of the season.

To-night "Ione" will be given at the Brooklyn Academy for the first and only time. On Friday "Un Ballo en Maschera" is to be revived.

Irving Hall.—Miss Olive Logan will repeat her very interesting readings from the poets at this establishment to-night. It is the second and last of the too brief series.

Herrmann at the Brooklyn Academy.—The second series of Herrmann's performances in Brooklyn are eminently successful, the Academy being crowded night after night with the best people in that most moral city. To-morrow night he exhibits there and promises to explain his celebrated ring and drum tricks. To-night, at the New-York Academy, he announces a most attractive programme.

NOTES.

—Huntington's picture of "The Republican Court," now on exhibition at the Art Gallery, No. 625 Broadway, is one of the few objects of interest that are entirely American. It is a profitable study to look over the sixty faces there represented and trace out their destiny. The last of all, George Washington Parke Curtis, who appears in the picture as a handsome boy of fifteen, died only eight years ago. Among the more eminent persons represented we notice Washington, Adams, Hamilton, Louis Phillippe, Fisher Ames, Jefferson, John Jay, the two Trumbulls, Gilbert Stuart, John Hancock, Dr. Rush, Baron Steuben, Gen. Lincoln, Gen. Knox, Francis Hopkinson, Gen. Green, three Morrises, (Lewis, Robert and Gouverneur,) Henry Laurens, Oliver Wolcot, Oliver Ellsworth; and of the gentler sex, Mrs. Washington, (Martha Dandridge,) Mrs. John Adams, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Rufus King, Nelly Curtis, Mrs. Robert Morris, Dolly Paine, Harriet Chew, Anne Willing, Abigail Adams, Pamela Dwight, Sarah Van Brugh Livingston, Sophia Chew, Lady Duer, Sally Foster, (Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis,) Mrs. Ralph Izard, Mrs. George Clinton, Polly Carroll, Mary Ann Wolcott, and Martha Jefferson. Not alone is this fine picture worthy of attention, but there is also an excellent collection of paintings, mainly by German artists, that will add materially to the enjoyment and instruction of the visitor.

—Tunis sends an embassy to Washington. Perhaps no government recognized among men is so little known here. Yet from this obscure corner of the world, this little strip of African sand, lying between the Great Desert and the Mediterranean, there come kind words of condolence for the inexpressible grief that wrung our hearts on the death of our late Chief Magistrate. And more, too: the Tunistan Envoy congratulates us upon the restoration of peace, and joins hands with the Great Republic in a "God speed" to liberty and free government." There are men living—white men, we mean—who were once slaves in Tunis—slaves in the most abject sense of the term—slaves held for high ransom, and bent to servile tasks, while the Stars and stripes were lowered before the crescent. But times change; and we who compelled the practical abolition of slavery in the African States, and yet held four millions of Africans in slavery, now cheerfully accept these barbarian congratulations, and welcome in good faith the representative of this strange people.

—The Democratic ticket is running badly in Albany. A new police has been established and there is not a bar-room in all the town open on Sunday; they are absolutely sealed—and the back doors are barred. It is estimated that from eighty-six to ninety-four Democratic votes are lost every week because of this innovation. The faithful swear terribly, but the "new police," which seems to be a photographic copy of the New-York organization, is omnipresent and inflexible. A little while ago, Sunday in Albany was a joyful carnival, when the "Do-as-you-please" Club had unlimited sway, and the clink of glass made merry music in every corner; now one might reasonbly suppose that half the people were dead and the other half were making shrouds for the corpses. The only visible living natives there last Sunday were the "Black-yer-boots-Boss? shine-'em-up" boys, and they looked dreadfully dry. If Prince John and Horatio the Cupreous do not break through this new regulation, we cannot answer for more than half the customary majority in Albany County.

A fine portrait of John Bright, by Mr. Fagnani, will be presented to the Chamber of Commerce at the monthly meeting to-day. This portrait of Mr. Bright has been executed for Mr. S. B. Chittenden, of this city, and will be presented by him. It will form a companion to the painting of Richard Cobden, by the same artist, now in possession of the chamber.

—In another column the Central Railroad of New-Jersey advertise one express train daily to the oil regions via Mauch Chunk. It is claimed that an hour and a half is saved by this route. It is worth that to go through a town with such a poetical name.

—A sale of three hundred thousand acres of pine lands in Michigan is to take place in Detroit on Oct. 16. The particulars of the sale will be found in the advertising columns.

Fighting Joe Hooker has surrendered at last; Miss Olivia Groesbeck, of Cincinnati, has taken the gallant General captive, and on Tuesday night she married him.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Trial of the Algonquin and Winooski—Letter from Mr. Forbes to the Secretary of the Navy.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Oct. 4, 1865.

Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

SIR: I enclose the report of my engineer in reply to the published report of yours, on the dock trial of the Algonquin.

If its statements are true, you and the public are grossly deceived by your report; if false, I am grossly deceived. The consequences are too important to the country and to me to permit the issue to pass unsettled. The records are in your possession, not mine. I request that they be examined, and one report or the other be proved. If your engineers' report is incorrect, I presume you will not ask me to submit again to such treatment. The board of experts can easily settle it by inspection of the logs.

If I had anticipated that my efforts to present to the United States more economical and better machinery, would have been met with such opposition and obstruction as I have experienced, I should not have undertaken the thankless service.

The facts here presented by me, if true, must satisfy you that a trial at the dock for the purpose of forming an opinion as to the probable performance of a steamer when under way, is wholly fallacious. A method which permits an official report to be made purporting to be the truth, which deprives one of the steamers of some hundreds of revolutions actually made by her, and of a large amount of coal actually saved by her, must of necessity be unfit and unfair.

I now expect as my right that the Algonquin be permitted to exhibit her economy according to the plan of her construction, when using the power necessary for ordinary cruising speed. If the statements of my engineer, on whom I rely, are true, and I implicitly believe them, the facts are of the greatest importance to our country. On the 25th of August you sent me an official letter from the Bureau of Steam Engineering, in which your Engineer-in-Chief uses these words; "my wishes from the first were to have a careful trial at the dock for economy of fuel, as that is really the foundation of your whole claims, and then a trial for a mere test of speed if you desire it." This admits the truth. Economy of fuel is really the foundation of my claims. But no opportunity has yet been afforded me to show the economy which I wish to present, and every effort has been made to prevent the exhibition of that economy. It is absurd to pretend that a vessel prepared to go 8 knots an hour, with 900 pounds of coal, should be compelled to burn 1,600 pounds per hour in order to show her economy!

I feel that I have not been fairly dealt with, and I now appeal to you to decide whether or not I shall have the opportunity to show the economy of the Algonquin at 8 knots per hour under way, or if you will not permit the trial to be made under way, then at the dock, each vessel receiving 900 pounds of coal an hour; and let the report state all the revolutions and account for all the coal delivered.

Respectfully, P. S. FORBES.

REPORT OF MR. DICKERSON TO MR. FORBES OF THE TRIAL AND ITS RESULTS.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Sept. 27, 1865.

Paul S. Forbes, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: I have read the report of Mr. ISHERWOOD's three engineers, Messrs. DANBY, FITHIAN and KELLOGG, dated Sept. 26, addressed to the Secretary of the Navy, and published on the morning of the 27th. In this report it is alleged that, so far as the comparison went, the Winooski was in truth 231 revolutions ahead of the Algonquin, and it is claimed that she was her equal in economy.

The report is a fraud upon you and upon the public. Its object is to prevent the exhibition of the Algonquin's great economy. I predicted to you that this would be attempted when the accident to the Algonquin happened.

The logs of the vessels, kept by United States Engineers, show the truth—which is, that at 4 o'clock on Friday both vessels, being under steam from a previous fire, began to receive 1,600 pounds an hour for a 96 hours' run. Up to 11 o'clock on Sunday night, the last count before the stoppage of the Algonquin, each vessel had received exactly the same amount of coal, viz.: 88,000 pounds. With this coal the Algonquin, at 11 o'clock, had made 47,454 revolutions, the Winooski 47,362—or 92 less, (this count being subject to a trifling correction of two or three minutes for variation of clocks.) Out of her coal the Algonquin had saved, and piled up on the dock, more than 2,500 pounds of coal, or enough to run her an hour and a half longer. The Winooski had saved nothing. If the vessels had been under way, the Algonquin would have been 92 revolutions ahead in distance, and no juggle of arithmetic could have put her astern, or prevented her saved coal from carrying her 16 nautical miles further ahead when she should burn it.

The fraud, by which at the dock, the saved coal is annihilated, and the Algonquin is dragged astern, was perpetrated by suppressing from the account the first four hours of the log; during which four hours the Algonquin made about 300 revolutions more than the Winooski, and the Winooski took 3,000 pounds of coal more than the Algonquin, in violation of the regulations of the trial, and without notice to me.

During the first 28 hours of the run the Algonquin saved coal and piled it up on the dock. At 8 o'clock on Saturday night she began to burn 1,600 pounds an hour, the Winooski doing the same; and for 27 subsequent hours both vessels used the same hourly allowance. If any time less than the 96 hours is to be taken as a criterion, it should be that time during which both vessels were burning hourly the same amount of coal, i. e. these 27 hours. During these hours the Algonquin made upward of 1,000 turns more than the Winooski, and was gaining at the same rate when she was stopped by the accident, and could have continued to do it indefinitely; notwithstanding the fact, that her fresh-water supply condenser does not work at the dock as you notified the Navy Department, when you protested; and notwithstanding the fact that our wheels adapted to expansion and economy had been removed against your protest; and more than all, notwithstanding the fact, that we were required to burn about twice as much coal per hour as was necessary to drive the Algonquin 8 knots an hour, and thereby were deprived of all opportunity to show the great economy of the Algonquin at this best ordinary cruising speed, and in disregard of the order of the Secretary of the Navy which requires "The trial to determine the relative economy of the power with each machinery operated to the best advantage for that purpose."

If you have any rights, now is the time to assert them. You cannot expect any better treatment in the future than you have had in the past, at the hands of those, who by a stroke of the pen, have annihilated your 2,500 pounds of saved coal, and 300 of your revolutions actually made.

The engine of the Algonquin is constructed to drive her eight knots an hour—a fast cruising speed—with an economy which cannot be equalled by any other war steamer in the United States. Nine hundred pounds of coal an hour are sufficient for that purpose. I am prepared to prove this assertion by the demonstration of fact; and if I must, I will show at the dock, disabled in condenser and wheels as she is, that my assertion must be true. Let the Winooski and the Algonquin have each 900 pounds of coal per hour, (both having working boiler pressure to begin with) and the Algonquin will beat her forty per cent. in economy for ninety-six or any other number of hours. That the Algonquin can do this, I pledge myself to you and to the public, and I rely upon your obtaining the opportunity.

Further, the Algonquin and Winooski under way, and both carrying the same number of tons weight, in addition to their machinery, the Algonquin will go as fast as the Winooski, and as far, notwithstanding the fact that the Winooski has 27 per cent. larger engine, 50 per cent. more grates, and nearly three times as large boilers.

It should be known to the public that the Winooski is contending against the Algonquin by the use of the Algonquin's principles. She uses an independent cut-off, and expands her steam three times at one end of the cylinder, and twice at the other. You asked that the cut-off of the Winooski should be set at six-tenths, the point beyond which Mr. ISHERWOOD says there is no economy. This request was refused by Mr. ISHERWOOD. None of the naval vessels proper, built under Mr. ISHERWOOD's theory, have any independent cut-off. The economy of the Winooski cutting off as she does is 60 per cent. greater than that of the naval vessels without an independent cut-off.

The gratuitous accusation of complexity made by Mr. ISHERWOOD's engineers, is answered by the fact that valve gear of precisely the same construction has been running with great success, for a long time, in many steamers, among them the Moro Castle, well known in this community; and no one of them, to my knowledge, ever failed to do its duty, to the entire satisfaction of its owners.

Truly yours, EDWD. N. DICKERSON.

Queens County Fair.

THE FIRST DAY—AWARD OF PREMIUMS.

The twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the Queens County Agricultural Society opened yesterday morning at the Fashion Course, Flushing, about one-fourth of a mile north of the West Flushing depot. Notwithstanding the threatening weather of the morning the number of articles and animals on exhibition was quite fair. All lack in numbers, however, was more than compensated for by the quality of those present, many of which were confessed superior to those of any previous exhibition of the kind ever held in this famous county. The Fashion grounds occupy sixty-three acres, are inclosed by a brick wall ten feet high and contain a commodious building of 600 feet in length, for show stands, restaurants, &c. There is probably no show ground in the State superior to this. Mr. JOHN C. JACKSON, President, and Mr. JOHN HAROLD, Secretary, succeeded admirably in making the arrangements agreeable to both spectators and exhibitors. Nothing, so far as diligence on the part of the managers and enthusiasm of the citizens of the county and adjacent section is concerned, is wanting, and to-day, the weather being favorable, the exhibition will doubtless prove one of the best of the kind ever witnessed on the island.

CATTLE.

Thirteen premiums were awarded for thorough-bred cattle, of which there was a goodly number present, consisting of Durhams, Devons, Ayrshires, &c. The premiums ranged from $5 to $10, each. Twenty premiums were awarded for cattle other than thorough-bred, ranging from $2 to $8. Three premiums were also awarded for the best yokes of working oxen.

HORSES.

Thirty premiums were awarded for the best specimens of horses for all working purposes, ranging from $10 downward. The first premium in this class was won by Abdallah, owned by Mr. P. P. KISSAM, of Flushing.

SHEEP.

Seven premiums were awarded, from $10 downward, the first of which for bucks was awarded to ROBERT MORRELL, of Great Neck, and the first for best ewe, to Mr. W. MCMILLAN.

SWINE.

Seven premiums awarded, from $5 to $20. To whom awarded, not yet known.

POULTRY.

Seventeen premiums awarded for poultry, ranging from $10 to $2. MCDONALD & Co. won the first.

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

Six premiums awarded, consisting of choice articles of silver cutlery. Mrs. BLOODGOOD H. CUTLER, of Little Neck, received the first premium, for best sample of butter, not less than six pounds.

GRAIN.

Eighteen premiums awarded. To whom awarded not yet known.

VEGETABLES.

Forty premiums awarded, the first of which was won by MCDOUGAL & Co., Flushing. The show was very large.

Seven premiums were awarded for the best samples of farm implements, and seven also for the best carriage, wagon and harness. To whom, not known.

FRUIT.

Sixteen premiums awarded. The first was won by S. C. UNDERHILL, for the best variety of fruits.

Ten premiums were awarded for the best exhibition of flowers. The first was given to BENJ. WOOD, Manhassett, for best floral design.

Twenty-one premiums were awarded for the best specimens of needle work, and six for domestic manufacture.

Twenty-four horses of known merits are already entered for the trial of speed to take place to-day, beginning at 10 o'clock A. M. Butler, Conquest, Vanderbilt, Jupiter, Junior and others are among the number. The list of premiums awarded will be given in full in our next issue.

Board of Education.

CHILDREN OF NON-RESIDENTS FILLING OUR SCHOOLS.

At a meeting of the board, last evening, President JAMES M. MCLEAN in the chair, after routine business, a report was presented by the committee that had been instructed to institute inquiry concerning the attendance of non-resident children at our schools, and a resolution was offered closing the schools against the children of non-residents. Messrs. Neilson, Roosevelt, Hastie, Dupignac, Farr, Miller, Vance and Hayes discussed the resolution at length, and informed the board that not only do the ferry-boats take hundreds of children across the rivers immediately after school hours, but the Harlem Railroad runs a train which is known as the school train. Mr. ROOSEVELT hoped that the board would not summarily expel those non-resident female pupils who are completing their course in the schools. Mr. MILLER thought that the board's action should be sweeping, inasmuch as these pupils, having graduated at the Grammar Schools, may claim admission to the Free Academy. The resolution was finally adopted by nineteen yeas, and no nays. The question of in the first and second grades of the Grammar Schools came up, and Mr. MILLER thought that the Eleventh and Thirteenth Wards were entitled to the additional teachers that would be required to teach these languages, the population of those wards being mainly of German descent. Messrs. HASTIE, NEILSON, ROOSEVELT and VANCE also advocated the resolution authorizing the teaching of French and German in the first and second grades in the Grammar Schools, and the resolution was adopted.

TEACHING GERMAN AND FRENCH

OTHER MATTERS.

Mrs. MARIA KASMIRE, widow of the late Commissioner ANDREW J. KASMIRE, having applied for position as teacher in one of the schools in the Eleventh Ward, and City Superintendent RANDALL having declined to give her a certificate, the Board was asked to overrule the City Superintendent's action. Mr. NEILSON thought that the Board should not permit their sympathies to rule in their action while legislating upon school matters. The subject was referred to the Committee on Evening Schools.

The report of the committee that had been instructed to inquire into the expediency of advertising the members' speeches, resolutions, etc., in any public journal, was not reached, members of the Board having consumed the allotted time in discussions.

Board of Fire Commissioners.

The stated meeting of the Board of Fire Commissioners took place yesterday afternoon at Fireman's Hall, Mr. C. C. PINKNEY in the chair. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and adopted the Secretary announced that a communication had been received from the Central Department Metropolitan Police, allowing the Fire Commissioners to place an apparatus for the telegraph fire alarm in the several station houses of New-York, the whole to be under the supervision of the Superintendent of Police Telegraph. Several resignations were received and referred to the Committee on Application and Discharge. A new company was organized, and will be known as the Metropolitan Engine Company No. 21. It will be located in Fortieth-street, near Third-avenue, and is composed of the following members: James B. Hunt, foreman; John A. Boglan, assistant foreman; Ed. O'Donnell, stoker; John Carr, driver; Hy. Bennett, F. Keller, H. Jewell, Albert Stone, E. D. Mahoney, Wm. Barber, Wm. Sheehan and Joseph O'Davis, firemen.

The proposal of Mr. Wm. JEFFERS, of Pawtucket, R. I., to build steam fire-engines for the commissioners was referred to the Committee on Apparatus, and the contract for building a stable and making alterations in Engine No. 30 was awarded to Mr. W. C. HANNA, he being the lowest bidder, only asking $1,300 for the job.

An Embassy From Tunis.

Among the passengers by the steamship Persia, which arrived on Tuesday night, were Mr. PERRY, our Consul to Tunis, and an embassy from the Bey of Tunis, MOHAMMED SADYK, who are sent here for the purpose of condoling with our government on the death of Mr. LINCOLN, and felicitating it on the return of peace. The members of the embassy are Gen. OTMAN HASHEM, Special Envoy from the Bey of Tunis; Col. RAMIRO GAITA, his Aid-de-Camp; the Chevalier ANTOINE CONTI, Secretary and Interpreter.

These gentlemen bear with them a letter of condolence addressed to Mrs. LINCOLN, and one of felicitation to President JOHNSON. The embassy are at present stopping at the Astor House, where they occupy parlors Nos. 42 and 43. In person the members of the embassy resemble Moors or Turks, and have apparently very little of the African about them. Gen. HASHEM looks to be about 50 years of age, and has a fine soldier-like appearance. He wears an ordinary black cloth suit with a red fez. Col. GAITA is apparently about 35 years of age. The Chevalier CONTI is quite a young man. They are all persons of education, and speak French fluently. Yesterday they received visits from Collector KING, Surveyor WAKEMAN and other prominent gentlemen, and to-day they will in all probability take the opportunity of seeing our prominent public buildings and the Central Park. During the week they will proceed to Washington.

This is the first time that a representative of Tunis has ever visited this country. The present Bey is said to be a man of enlightened understanding, who has introduced many important reforms into the administration of the government.

The Trouble at the Fair.

We yesterday briefly alluded to a difference between the managers of the Fair and one of the exhibitors. Since that time some new developments have been made. About 6 o'clock Tuesday evening the signs of Mr. HELMBOLD, the party in question, were forcibly taken down, and the printing of the paper called the Fairest of the Fair was stopped. We understand that this action on the part of the manager, for it seems that it was not the official action of the board as a body, was promptly resented by Mr. HELMBOLD, who commenced a civil action yesterday morning against the offending member, Mr. R. B. DAWSON, before Judge SMITH, at the Jefferson Market Court, laying his damages in the sum of $250. The case is set down for the 13th inst. Meantime we are advised that the managers themselves are not agreed upon the propriety of the proceedings in the case, and still further trouble is not improbable.

Sale of Pittston Coal—A Rise in Prices

Yesterday, the Pennsylvania Coal Company sold at public auction thirty thousand tons of Pittston coal, deliverable at Newburgh, in tons of 2,240 pounds, the freight from Newburgh to this city being seventy cents per ton.

The attendance at the sale was large and the bidding spirited. The following were the prices obtained: 2,500 tons lump coal, $10 75; 8,000 tons steam coal, $11 40@$11 55; 5,000 tons grate coal, $11 15; 4,000 tons egg coal, $11 50; 8,000 tons stove coal, $11 80@$12; 2,000 tons chestnut coal, $10 12½@$10 37½.

The following prices were obtained at the July sale by the same company: Lump coal, $6 75 to $6 80; steamboat coal, $6 87½; grate coal, $7; egg coal, $7 05 to $7 10; stove coal, $7 15 to $7 20; chestnut coal, $6 30 ℔ ton. The increase, taking only the highest figures of each sale, is as follows: Lump coal, $3 95; steamer coal, $4 67½; grate coal, $4 15; egg coal, $4 40; stove coal, $4 80; chestnut coal, $4 37½ ℔ ton.

Presentation to Ex-Chief Engineer Decker.

Last evening, Mr. JOHN DECKER, Ex-Chief Engineer of the New-York Fire Department, was the recipient of a very handsome testimonial from the members of Broderick Engine No. 1, of San Francisco, Cal. The presentation took place at the Metropolitan Hotel. Mr. C. K. GARRISON, Ex-Mayor of San Francisco, presided, and Mr. JAMES B. MACMAHON, Ex-Clerk of the Supreme Court of the State, acted as Secretary. Mayor GUNTHER was invited to occupy a seat on the right hand of the President.

Mr. E. B. CUTTER, ex-foreman of Broderick Engine Company No. 1, in a neat speech, presented to Mr. DECKER the testimonial prepared for his acceptance, which consisted of a very handsome gold badge, valued at $500, designed and executed by a member of Broderick Engine Company, and a set of complimentary resolutions.

Mr. DECKER accepted the testimonial in a brief speech, and addresses were afterward made by Mayor GUNTHER, Mr. WENTWORTH, Ex-Senator RYAN, of San Francisco, Mr. GEO. H. PURSER, and others. A number of patriotic toasts were then drank, and the assemblage dispersed after passing a very pleasant evening.

Union Mass Meeting at Hoboken.

A large number of people were present last evening in the grounds of Otto Cottage, Hoboken, in order to ratify the nomination of MARCUS S. WARD, for Governor of New-Jersey. Dr. CHARLES WEHLE was president of the meeting, and introduced Brig.-Gen. LITTLEFIELD, now in command of a District in North Carolina, the Hon. ALBERT DAVISON, and Gen. SWIFT, of Louisiana, all of whom addressed the audience, which was of the most enthusiastic description. The Union Glee Club also enlivened the meeting by several patriotic and national songs. Gen. KILPATRICK, who was the orator of the evening, said, that a little over four years ago ROBERT TOOMBS had boasted he would call the roll of slaves on Bunker Hill. At that time he (the General) was in New-York and heard the song, "The Sword of Bunker Hill," sung by about 400 ladies with so much vim and vigor that he was convinced there was stuff enough in the people of the North to prevent any such roll being called. Copperheads had said he was afraid to visit Hoboken and address the meeting; he was going to speak at Newark on Saturday next, and invited all present to be there to see if he were absent or not.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.—The Jewish "Feast of Tabernacles" commenced at sunset last evening, and will continue for seven days. It is an occasion of great joy. Boughs are suspended in the synagogues and private houses, to signify that the children of Israel are dwelling in booths. The observance commenced on the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity; and the book of Nehemiah expressly declares that "since the days of Joshua, the son of Nun, had not the children of Israel done so." The first and eighth day being the Sabbath, on the occasion of a "solemn assembly," the residue of the time is devoted to mirth and hilarity.

FIRE IN WATER-STREET.—The two upper stories of Mr. GEORGE COPELAND's cotton warehouse, at No. 155 Water-street, were consumed yesterday at noon. The fire originated from a lighted cigar which one of the girls had carelessly tossed into a pile of cotton waste. Messrs. WM. F. KMEDER, dealer in varnishes, HARDING & HEATH, tin, copper, and sheet-iron workers, and BRYDEN & ROBIDOUX, coal safe makers, on the lower floors, suffered loss from damage by fire and water. The total loss is estimated at from $20,000 to $30,000.

FATAL RESULT OF A CAR ACCIDENT.—Coroner COLLIN yesterday held an inquest on the body of ELLEN FITZGERALD, who died from injuries received on the 25th ult., by being run over in Little Twelfth-street by a Bleecker-street car. One of the wheels passed over both of her wrists and nearly severed them from her arms. She was conveyed to Bellevue Hospital, where both arms were amputated. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

A GRAND HOTEL AT CENTRAL PARK.—The plot of ground bounded by Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth streets, and Fifth and Madison avenues, in this city, has been purchased, it is reported, by the proprietor of the New-York Hotel, Mr. HIRAM CRANSTON, for the purpose of erecting a magnificent hotel which shall cost, with the ground, about two million dollars.

BILLIARDS.—The first match between DUDLEY KAVANAGH and PIERRE CARME is announced for this evening. The place selected for the play is Gallaher's Rooms, late the Evening Gold Exchange, in Twenty-fourth-street. The terms are 250 points and the French carom game.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday night while ANN CONROY was standing in front of a store at No. 46 Centre-street, a hammer fell out of an upper window, and striking her on the head, fractured the skull. She was removed to her home, where she died soon after.

A MAN BURNED TO DEATH AT THE SOUTH-STREET FIRE.—Coroner WILDEY was yesterday notified to hold an inquest on the body of an unknown man, who was burned to death at the fire corner of South and Oliver streets, on Tuesday night.

"SECOND TO NONE."—An interesting story by JAMES GRANT, called "Second to None," is published in the current number of the Scottish American Journal—a journal which maintains a sound, healthy tone in its discussion of public matters generally.

"Social refinement always manifests itself in the selection of articles of luxury; and it may be regarded as a proof of a highly educated national taste that PHALON's "Night-Blooming Cereus" has been adopted by all classes of the American people as their favorite perfume."—Germantown Telegraph.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

FROUDE'S ENGLAND.
PUBLISHED THIS DAY BY
CHAS. SCRIBNER & CO.,
VOLS. 3 AND 4 OF
HISTORY OF ENGLAND, FROM THE FALL OF WOLSEY TO THE DEATH OF ELIZABETH.

By JAMES A. FROUDE, M. A., of Exeter College, Oxford. From the fourth London edition. In crown 8vo. vols. Price, $2 50 each. Vols. 1-4 now ready.

Mr. Froude has shown in his admirable history what new results may be derived, even in the most beaten track, from a thorough investigation of the original authorities. His researches have thrown a flood of light over the personal character of Henry VIII., his relation to the great event of modern history, the reformation of religion in Europe and the British Isles, that it would be in vain to seek elsewhere.

The work has received the most favorable notices from the leading English journals, and has already passed through four editions in England. The vast amount of fresh and authentic materials which the author has brought to bear on the periods of which he writes, gives his work an interest and value beyond any previous history of the same events.

ON SATURDAY,
DANTE,
AS PHILOSOPHER, PATRIOT AND POET. With an Analysis of the Divine Comedia, its Plot and Episodes. By Prof. BOTTA. 1 vol., crown 8vo., on tinted paper, $2 50.

It is decidedly the best account of the poet that has appeared in the English language. It is careful, learned, discriminating and eloquent, written in terse and eloquent English that is remarkable in the pen of an author not native to our soil. The analysis of the poem is full and philosophical, alive with Italian enthusiasm, yet calm and truly catholic in its humanity and trust.—New-York Evening Post.

ARTEMUS WARD, HIS TRAVELS, is the title of this ridiculous new book, which everybody is laughing over, in spite of themselves.

That is to say, 3,000 copies of Mr. Carleton's new comic book, entitled OUR ARTIST IN CUBA, have been sold in less than a week, and another edition is rapidly passing through the press.

OUR ARTIST IN CUBA

is a beautiful little book, containing fifty comic sketches of a traveler's haps and mishaps in that lovely land of leather-colored Cubans, scorpions, rats, cockroaches, tarantulas, fleas, spiders, lizards, donkeys, cock-fights, mask-balls, codfish, garlic, onions and oranges that do abound in the tropics.

The Publisher would say that the pictures are brim full of humor, and are being praised by every one—but the Author forbids any such manner of advertising—so the book must speak for itself.

NOW READY.
A NEW EDITION
OF
PRINCIPLES OF POLITICAL ECONOMY,
with some of their Applications of Social Philosophy, By JOHN STUART MILL. 2 vols., 8vo. Printed on tinted paper. Cloth, $6.

"In the whole range of extant authorship on political economy, there is no writer except Adam Smith with whom John Stuart Mill can, without injustice, be compared. In originality, Adam Smith, as being the acknowledged father of the science, takes the precedence, as he does also in exuberance of apt illustration. But in rectitude of understanding, clearness and sagacity, Mill is fully his peer; in precision of method, range of topics, and adaptation to the present state of society, he is altogether his superior. The 'Wealth of Nations' now belongs, indeed, rather to the history of the science than to its exposition; but the 'Principles of Political Economy' is an orderly, symmetrical and lucid exposition of the science in its present advanced state. In extent of information, breadth of treatment, pertinence of fresh illustration, and accommodation to the present wants of the statesman, the merchant and the social philosopher, this work is unrivaled. It is written in a luminous and smooth, yet clear-cut style; and there is diffused over it a soft atmosphere of feeling, derived from the author's unaffected humanity and enlightened interest in the welfare of the masses."

PROPOSALS FOR FUNDING
CERTIFICATES OF INDEBTEDNESS, COMPOUND INTEREST NOTES AND TREASURY NOTES.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29, 1865.

By virtue of the authority contained in the first section of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to provide ways and means to support the Government," approved March 3, 1865, which provides, among other things, that any Treasury Notes, or other obligations bearing interest issued under any act of Congress, may, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, and with the consent of the holder, be converted into any description of bonds authorized by said act, notice is hereby given to the holders of Certificates of Indebtedness which mature before the 1st day of January next, of Compound Interest Notes, and of one and two year Treasury Notes, of the readiness of this department to give in exchange for them, to the extent of fifty millions of dollars, six per cent. Five-Twenty Year Bonds at three per cent. premium; that is to say, one hundred dollars of bonds for each one hundred and three dollars in certificates and notes; provided the conversion is made prior to the 1st day of November next.

The bonds issued in exchange for such certificates and notes will bear an interest of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually in coin, upon the first days of May and November, and will be redeemable at the pleasure of the government after five years, and payable in twenty years from the first day of November, 1865.

The coupon and registered bonds issued under this proposal will be of the denominations of one hundred, five hundred and one thousand dollars. Registered bonds of five thousand and ten thousand dollars will be issued if desired.

Holders of certificates, compound interest or Treasury notes, who desire to make such conversions, will deliver them to the Treasurer, the Assistant Treasurers or the designated depositaries of the United States, or to any national depositary bank which may consent to transact the business without charge.

Interest will be allowed on certificates of indebtedness, and one and two-year Treasury notes matured or maturing prior to the first of November, 1865, up to the date of maturity, and when maturing after the first of November, interest will be allowed to that day.

Upon the compound interest notes the interest will be computed to November 1, 1865, upon the amount of principal and interest compounded on the back of said notes, from the period next prior to that date.

The principal and interest of such Treasury Notes and obligations will be considered together as an offer for conversion, but when, after deducting the principal of the Bonds, and three per cent. premium, there remains a fractional part of one hundred dollars, this fractional part will be paid to the depositor.

The Secretary reserves to himself the right of withdrawing this proposal at any time prior to said first day of November, provided fifty millions of dollars shall, prior to that date, be offered for conversion as aforesaid.

Circulars of instructions will be transmitted to the various officers authorized to receive certificates and notes, to which attention is invited.
H. McCULLOCH, Secretary of the Treasury.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS

I sung long years ago,
For heart and voice would fail me,
And foolish tears would flow;
For bygone hours come o'er my heart
With each familiar strain;
I cannot sing the old songs
Or dream those dreams again.

GEN. SLOCUM'S POSITION.

His Speech at Syracuse Monday Evening.

The Syracuse Courier, the Democratic organ, in its issue of Tuesday gives the following report of the speech delivered in that city by Gen. SLOCUM, on the preceding evening:

FELLOW CITIZENS: It is but little more than four years since I left this city to aid our government in the great struggle through which she has just passed. If we were to estimate time by the social and political changes which have occurred, this brief period would be measured by ages instead of years. Five years ago our strength as a military people was unknown even to ourselves. The most sanguine friend of the republic had no conception of our tremendous power. We were told by foreign critics at the commencement of the struggle that but little blood would be shed; we were not a military people; we were too much given to money-making to make great sacrifices for the honor of our nation—too fond of boasting to like the whistle of bullets. If foreign nations were justified in estimating us as a whole by the opinion which each section professed to entertain as to the strength of the opposing section, they certainly had good reasons for holding us in contempt. But disinterested and intelligent men should have better appreciated the strength of the South, the bravery of her people, and the terrible passions by which they were actuated, than to have believed (as many at the North professed to believe) that a few thousand men could march from the Potomac to the Gulf—that a few weeks would suffice to end the struggle and bring back in subjection eight millions of people, the great mass of whom had been led by unscrupulous politicians to believe that they were engaged in a cause as holy and patriotic as that which actuated our revolutionary fathers. Impartial judges should have known too well the character of the men of the North—their perseverance, energy, bravery and patriotism—to suppose that but little blood would be shed in an effort to uphold the honor and integrity of their country. Our strength has been made manifest, and is to-day universally acknowledged. From a quiet, prosperous and peace-loving people, having a standing army of but ten thousand men, we have suddenly sprung as a military power into the first rank among the nations of the earth. The development of the heroism and bravery of the mass of our people—the proof they have given of the facility with which they can leave the peaceful avocations of life and assume the arduous duties of the soldier, has astonished even our own rulers. Not less astounding has been the development in individuals, heretofore almost unknown, of all the great and noble traits of character necessary to the successful commander. A man residing at the opening of the war in one of our Western villages, unknown to many of his immediate neighbors, has suddenly become one of the greatest and most successful military chieftains of any age. Another, engaged at the commencement of the war as a professor in one of the military schools of the South, whose great military mind enabled him at the very outset of our troubles to see more clearly than others the necessities of the hour, and who for this reason was pronounced by the head of the War Department to be insane, has since astonished the world by the splendor of his achievements. No one disputes the debt that our nation owes to his genius and military skill; but to those who know him intimately WILLIAM T. SHERMAN is something higher, better and nobler than a mere military hero. He is known to them to be a pure patriot—seeking only his country's good—bold and fearless in the expression of his views—always ignoring self and all selfish considerations. And "Gallant little PHIL SHERIDAN," at the commencement of the war a subaltern officer on our Western frontier, known to but few outside of his own mess, never particularly happy except when some hostile tribe of Indians gave him an occasion for the exercise of his ruling passion, has been afforded a splendid opportunity for the display of his superior qualifications as a leader on the battle-field—and splendidly has he improved his opportunity—improved to his own and his country's glory. His name will go down to posterity as one of the few men who possessed the ability of communicating to every soldier of his great army the same impetuous valor by which he is himself inspired when in the presence of the enemy—a valor which "sent EARLY whirling up the Valley"—which converted the disaster at Cedar Creek into a brilliant victory, and which finally caused the surrender of LEE's army in Virginia. These changes which these few brief years have wrought in the social and pecuniary condition of many of our people, is a subject far more painful to contemplate. Thousands of families at the South, who have never heretofore known want—never lacked any of the luxuries of life, are now reduced to poverty. Thousands of women and children, reared in ease and affluence, have not only lost their property, but their natural protectors have been taken away from them in this terrible conflict. Blame the leaders as we may, no generous man can ever find in his heart anything but feelings of pity and compassion toward these unfortunate victims, reduced to a state worse than death itself by the ambition and errors of man. Here at the North the immediate effects of the war have been less felt; there has been less destruction of property, fewer cases of utter and hopeless ruin; still we are burdened with a heavy debt, the effects of which will be felt by all classes for generations to come. The changes in the political affairs of our country, produced by this war, are not less striking than those in our military and social condition. The great question which for years has agitated our country—which has influenced all our legislation—which has created sectional parties and at last has culminated in civil war, has finally and forever been put at rest. The operations of the war having demoralized and rendered the slave valueless, the States are now voluntarily moving to the entire extinction of the system. Most devoutly do I thank God for this result. I am confident the abolition of slavery will prove a greater blessing to the slaveholder than to the enslaved. With a soil of surpassing richness, with a climate equal to that of Italy, with a monopoly in the culture of the greatest of all staples, the removal of that institution which has checked the development of her resources, and has driven energy, enterprise and capital from her borders, opens to her a career of prosperity, which in a few years will do much to make her children forget the loss of life and property she has recently suffered. The only impediment has now been removed which has heretofore prevented us from having a true Union—one of interest and feeling as well as of law. I believe the Union is now permanently established, and that as a people we are soon to enter upon a brilliant career. Whether this career is to commence at once or be deferred twenty or thirty years, depends very much upon the course pursued by the General Government toward the Southern States. If the General Government is to assume powers which it has never before claimed to possess—and is to attempt to decide who shall be entitled to the elective franchise in certain States—if it is to continue to interfere in the domestic affairs of the Southern States, keeping military officers in the midst of their people to act as judges in all classes of dispute between different classes of citizens—then the dawn of peace and prosperity is yet far in the distance. The issue in the recent war was on the right of secession—the Southern States contending for that right, and declaring coercion upon the part of the General Government to be a violation of their legal and constitutional rights. The General Government, on the other hand, assumed that no such right existed, and treated the pretended secession as a revolt of a portion of the citizens of those States. The triumph of the government has decided the question, and it will never again be made an issue unless we now voluntarily reverse the decree. If we now say to the seceding States, you have been out of the Union, and thereby lost your constitutional rights as States, we certainly recognize the very principle for which the South has been contending. But I am opposed to all these measures for interference in the domestic affairs of those States, not only because I believe we have no constitutional right to interfere, but because I believe it will be unwise, impolitic and unjust to do so—leading to far greater evils than we would correct. One of the results of the recent war has been the sudden emancipation of four millions of slaves. Of these, at least one and a half millions are either children without parents upon whom they can depend for support, or old and infirm people, having no children upon whom they can lean. Of the remaining two and a half millions, not one in a thousand can read—none of them possess land. All have heretofore labored only by compulsion, and, of course, have not acquired habits of industry or economy. They are now in a land which has just been desolated by civil war. The policy to be adopted toward them is a question which should engage the best minds of the country. In the solution of the question differences of opinion must of course be anticipated. The plan of colonization has been proposed, and as many advocate, I believe it to be impracticable as well as unwise. In their present state of ignorance and indolence, their condition as a colony would be infinitely worse than that from which they have just been removed. They need the example and aid of the white race, and the States where they now are need their labor. The two races will remain associated, and the great mass of the negroes will remain in the Southern States. These States now come forward and accept the total abolition of slavery as one of the results of the war. In their State Constitutions, which are now being remodeled, every State will acknowledge this fact, and will insert an article prohibiting slavery henceforth and forever. Having done this, they claim all the rights guaranteed to them by the constitution. The right of deciding who among their own citizens shall be entitled to the elective franchise, and the right of controlling their own domestic affairs. Shall they be allowed these privileges, or shall the General Government, in violation of the constitution, and in violation of repeated declarations as to its purposes in prosecuting the war, assume control of these matters? This is now almost the only living issue between the great political parties of the day. The Democratic party, with entire unanimity, declares in favor of allowing to every State the exercise of all powers not delegated by it to the General Government. Now that the freedom of the slave is universally acknowledged, this party is willing that the States where the freedmen reside shall pass such laws as they may deem proper for their education and support. A large portion of the opposition party favors having the General Government assume control of these matters, burdening our people with the support of a million paupers, and complicating us in the settlement of questions with which we have no constitutional right to meddle. The arguments used to convince Northern people that it is the duty of the General Government to assume this great responsibility, while the States are willing and desirous of relieving the government from it, are based, first, upon the assumption that, as soon as the government withdraws its protection, great cruelties will be inflicted upon the blacks, and, secondly, that the States will at once pass laws reducing the race again to a condition but little better than a state of slavery. I have never believed that all the humane and kindly impulses implanted by nature in the heart of man were confined to a particular section of country. I firmly believe that the sight of human suffering calls forth as much sympathy in one section of our country as in another; and I do not fear that a course of systematic cruelty will ever be practiced in any section of this country toward any of God's creatures. That it will be found necessary to pass laws for the government of the blacks I do not doubt. Laws must be passed for the maintenance of the old and infirm and for the support and education of the young. That isolated cases of injustice in the treatment of the blacks will occur I do not doubt; that some unwise laws may be passed is not improbable; but I am confident less injustice will be done the blacks as well as the whites if the matter is left in the hands of those most deeply interested. The labor of the black man is an absolute necessity in every Southern State. Now that he is free, self-interest will prompt the men of the South to endeavor to make him a cheerful and willing laborer. Having acknowledged his freedom, humanity, patriotism and self-interest will combine to induce the statesmen of the South to adopt such laws with reference to the negro as will be best calculated to promote his interest and the interests of society. But suppose that, distrusting the Southern people, we take into our own hands the appalling task of regulating the relations between employer and employe—the task of providing for the indigent, educating the young and compelling all to labor who are able but indisposed to do so. Aside from the heavy burdens it will impose upon us—aside from the contention and bitterness to which it will give rise in Congress and among our people, shall we not be likely to commit as many errors—to perpetrate as many acts of injustice as would be perpetrated under the State authorities? Look at the working of the institution now in operation for regulating the affairs of the freedmen. You often read accounts in the newspapers as to the condition of affairs in certain localities. You are informed about the prosperous condition of a few schools established for the benefit of negro children—of the readiness with which they learn their letters, and of the ardor with which they sing patriotic airs. According to some of these accounts the negro children are far superior to your own; they mutter the alphabet in their sleep and spend most of their waking hours in invoking blessings on the head of Gen. SAXTON and other distinguished public men. To many I presume this is pleasant reading matter, and it may serve to convince some people that the great problem is already solved, that through the efforts of SAXTON and his colaborers, four millions of ignorant and degraded beings are to be suddenly elevated, and to become educated, refined and patriotic members of society. You seldom hear of the numerous cases where the freedmen have laid claims to the lands of their former masters, and have frequently informed them that they held title under the United States Government, and have persistently refused to do anything but eat, loiter and sleep. They fail to tell you of the cases where, just as the harvest was to commence, every hand has suddenly disappeared from the place, leaving the labors of a year to decay in the field. They fail to tell you of great bands of colored people who leave their former homes and congregate in the cities and villages, or settle on a plantation without permission from the owner, seeking only food and utterly careless of the future. On the very day that I left Vicksburgh, a poor woman came to me with a complaint that at least fifty negroes, not one of whom she had ever seen before, had settled on her farm and were eating the few stores she had laid aside for Winter use. Our sympathies are due to the white man as well as to the black race, though we have no constitutional right to control either. The difficulties surrounding this question can only be met and overcome by practical men. It is an easy matter to theorize on the subject; to point out the evils likely to result from the policy adopted by the President, but it will be found far more difficult to suggest any other method not likely to result in still greater evils. Gen. HOWARD, who stands at the head of the Freedmen's Bureau, is a man of great purity of character, and will never sustain a system which he does not think productive of good, and yet after carefully observing the operations of that bureau, I am convinced that more evil than good will result from perpetuating it after the States have adopted constitutions prohibiting slavery. Each State is placed in charge of an Assistant Commissioner. It is made the duty of the Department Commander to detail such officers and soldiers as these Assistant Commissioners may require in the discharge of their duties. All questions between whites and blacks are to be adjudicated by an officer or agent of the bureau. This, of course, requires that one officer or agent shall be stationed in each county, or at least that they shall be so distributed as to be accessible to all the inhabitants. These gentlemen, who are to act as judges in matters of difference between the races, are usually Lieutenants selected from the regiments on duty in the State. Each Judge, Lieutenant or agent, as you may please to term him, has his guard, and each guard its commissary establishment. The news of his arrival spreads with wonderful rapidity. A negro has a grievance against his employer or some other white person; he enters his complaint, and the Judge or Lieutenant orders the white man or white lady to appear before him and confront his or her accuser. The usual forms adopted in our courts of justice to ascertain the facts in the case are discarded. In some cases the accused is at once released; in others, he is fined twenty, fifty, or a hundred dollars. The Judge usually collects the fine and forwards it to his superior, to be used in defraying the expenses of the institution. The negro goes home, stopping at each plantation and detailing the particulars of the case to other freedmen. Half the negroes are at once seized with a desire to see the Yankee Military Judge and see how their old masters or mistresses would act on being brought before him. Complaints are made against the kindest and best people in the country. The immediate result is despondency and anger on the part of the whites—discontent and insolence on the part of the blacks. Here is a young man from a Northern State, not educated as a judicial officer and often not possessing a single qualification for the discharge of such duties upon whom devolve greater responsibilities than devolve upon Justices of our Supreme Court—for he not only acts as a Judge, but also as a sheriff and clerk; and from his decision it is seldom an appeal can be made. In my remarks upon this bureau, I do not wish to reflect upon any of the officers connected with it. Generally they are earnest and sincere men, and are doing all in their power to make it successful. It is of the system I speak. I contend that it is so utterly foreign to the principles by which our people have been governed that it cannot continue. And yet it appears to be the only method that can be devised for regulating these matters, providing the task of regulating them is to devolve upon the General Government. During the past few months, I have enjoyed good opportunities for studying the character and disposition of the freedmen, and of the workings of the organization designed to protect them. I have become fully convinced that the policy adopted by the President of leaving to the respective States the entire control of their local affairs is the only safe policy that can be adopted. You have been told by one of the journals of this city that I was much annoyed at the action of the President with regard to the organization of the Mississippi militia, and that this was one of the causes that induced me to resign my commission in the army, and accept a nomination for civil office. As my letter consenting to accept such a nomination was written prior to the action of the President on that question, and as one of the conditions of my acceptance was the indorsement of the policy of the President, this statement seems now unworthy of notice. Regarding my position in the army, as I have always done, simply as that of a soldier, bound to obey all orders received from superiors, and to carry out in good faith the policy of the Government, I can conceive of no good reason why I should feel annoyed by any order received by me. In response to an application for instructions as to the jurisdiction of military tribunals, I received from the War Department a communication informing me that the government regarded the State of Mississippi as still in a state of rebellion. Immediately after the receipt of these instructions, the Provisional Governor proposed to organize and arm the militia of the State. Acting under my orders, I would not permit it. Subsequently the President, taking a view of the condition of the State, differing somewhat from that taken by the War Department, resolved to withdraw the United States troops from the State, which, of course, removed all objection to the organization of the militia. So far from feeling annoyed at the result of this matter, I most heartily approve the removal of the troops from that State, and I most earnestly hope that within thirty days every soldier now on duty there will be mustered out of the service, and that all attempts to interfere in her local affairs will cease. Now that the State has adopted a constitution which does not recognize slavery, I would confide to her the settlement of questions likely to arise as to the means of supporting and controlling the freedmen. I believe that the people will regard the interest of the State as closely identified with that of the freedmen, and that such laws will be passed as will be best calculated to promote the interest of all. I am also charged by the same journal with having sacrificed my reputation as a public man, for the sake of obtaining a position with my political "opponents." During the war which has just closed, I have had but little to do with politics—I have made no political speeches—written no political letters. I have found the responsibilities devolving upon me, from my position in the army, quite sufficient to occupy my time and attention. Having now returned to civil life, I intend to support such measures as I deem best calculated to promote the interests of our country, and the prosperity and happiness of our people. I find one party united in the support of such measures—the other party divided upon them, and in several States strongly denouncing them; could I hesitate as to my course? Earnestly indorsing and approving every resolution adopted by the Democratic Convention, I supposed, in accepting a nomination from the convention, that I was entering the house of my political friends rather than that of my "opponents." The tornado which swept slavery from the land, swept with it every platform ever adopted by the Republican party prior to the war. I can call to mind but one resolution adopted by that party, before the close of the war, which has any bearing on the issues now before the people. On the 22d of July, 1861, the representatives of that party in Congress assembled, and without a dissenting voice declared: "the war is waged to defend and maintain the supremacy of the constitution and to preserve the Union with all the dignity, equality and rights of the several States unimpaired." To the principles thus solemnly declared I still adhere, and I regret to see a large portion of the Republican party diverging from them. At the time of the passage of this resolution there were many men at the South who had opposed secession, and who were unwilling to aid their States in making war upon our government. The resolution was a solemn pledge to that class as to the treatment they should receive in case their States should again be brought under control of the General Government. It was a solemn declaration to every officer and soldier of the Union armies as to the principles for which they were contending. It was made at a period of gloom and despondency—on the darkest day ever known in the capital of our country. The clouds that then hovered over us have been dispelled. Not an armed foe is to be found within our borders. Is it not humiliating to witness on the part of a large party which has controlled the destiny of our nation for five years, a disposition to repudiate in the hour of triumph solemn pledges made in the hour of danger?

> "When the devil was sick,
>   The devil a monk would be,
> When the devil was well,
>   A devil of a monk was he."

I have had the honor of serving with most of the soldiers presented by both political parties for the support of the people at the ensuing election. It affords me much pleasure to be able to unite with their political supporters in bearing evidence as to their high character as soldiers and as to their personal worth and fitness for the positions for which they have been nominated, but I cannot wish those on the Republican ticket success at the polls, for we are informed by one of the most prominent leaders of their party, that the platform on which they stand is "timid and wordy," and that but for lack of adhesion and discipline among the Radicals, a resolution would probably have been adopted virtually condemning the policy of the President. I do not think that the triumph of that party will tend to strengthen the President in his determination to adhere to the wise measures which have thus far characterized his administration. On the other hand, the triumph of the Democratic party will be a clear unmistakable indorsement of his policy—an unequivocal declaration on the part of the people of this State, in favor of "the subordination of military to civil rule, the restoration of the authority of the courts, and the recognition of the equality of the States."

The General was repeatedly cheered during his speech, even the ladies in the gallery demonstrating their highest approval, and when he concluded, a beautiful bouquet was thrown from the gallery at his feet, which token of respect was followed by a shower of plaudits.

Gov. SEYMOUR was then introduced, amid applause, and made a brief speech, and on retiring was greeted with a round of cheers and a bouquet, made up to represent the national colors—the red, white and blue, cast from the galleries upon the stage.

A CURIOUS STORY.

Cotton Speculations in the Army on the Mississippi—Action of Gen. Slocum—Finding of a Military Commission.

From the Chicago Republican.

VICKSBURGH, Miss., Sunday, Sept. 24, 1865.

I have obtained a copy of an official document revealing a gigantic fraud upon the government, in which Major-Gen. SLOCUM was a prominent actor—whether as a tool of cunning scoundrels, or as a participant in their guilty but enormous profits, I will not undertake to positively determine. The facts are as follows:

When Gen. GRANT came here in January, 1863, and, encamping at Milliken's Bend, began to assemble the immortal army with which he afterward captured Vicksburgh, the rebel citizens of Madison Parish, Louisiana, in which Milliken's Bend is situated, generally fled. Among the most extreme and violent of these people was one JOSEPH NOLAND, a cotton planter. Just before his flight, NOLAND complied with the orders of the rebel authorities by setting fire to his cotton, of which he had a considerable quantity. Most of it was burned up, and NOLAND left in the belief that it had entirely perished in the fire. It is said, however, that a small quantity escaped destruction—how much, I have not been able to ascertain, but from the best information I can gather, the amount was about forty bales.

When, in March and in April following, Gen. GRANT was fitting up his steamboats to run past the batteries of Vicksburgh, he sent about the country and gathered in all the abandoned cotton that could be found to be used for bulwarks for the protection of boilers and engines against the enemy's fire. There is no evidence, and none has ever been adduced, to prove that NOLAND's abandoned and unburnt cotton was taken for this purpose; but probably it was. At any rate, however, it was abandoned property, belonging to an enemy of the United States, who had tried to destroy it to prevent its falling into our hands, and was clearly subject to the use of the United States forces, without any right whatever, on the part of the fugitive rebel who owned it, to ask for payment.

In process of time, after Vicksburgh had fallen, NOLAND came back to his plantation. It had then become the fashion to present claims for cotton lost during active hostilities; and some six months after NOLAND's return he was induced by one DELANO to make out an allegation that GRANT had seized and used six hundred bales of his cotton, with a demand that that number of bales should be returned to him out of captured cotton then lying in the Quartermaster's storehouse in Vicksburgh. This claim was presented to Major-Gen. SLOCUM, who was then commanding at Vicksburgh, by whom it was treated at first with the indifference it merited as an impudent attempt to defraud the government for the benefit of a rebel, whose treason could not be denied or even questioned.

Hereupon NOLAND and his friends gave up the attempt and were looking to other means of making money; but there was then at Vicksburgh a shrewd and unscrupulous Northern speculator, named W. S. GRANT, who conceived the idea of achieving what NOLAND had failed to accomplish. He first bargained with NOLAND to buy the claim for about one-fifth or one-sixth of its nominal value, agreeing to pay him for it nearly one thousand dollars when he had got the cotton. Then he went to Gen. SLOCUM and used with him such effective arguments, that within two days that officer delivered to him 600 bales of cotton from a storehouse, which for some purpose had been taken out of the hands of the previous regular Quartermaster and put in charge of one Lieut. STEINER, an officer of the First Maryland Cavalry, who was not a Quartermaster, but only acting as such. Not being a bonded officer, of course STEINER was responsible in a somewhat less degree for property of the sort that might be in his hands. He might also be expected to be more pliable than a tried and experienced Quartermaster who thoroughly understood his duties and his rights. These six hundred bales STEINER surrendered to GRANT upon SLOCUM's order, as an equivalent for that which NOLAND pretended to have lost, and this cotton was immediately shipped to New-Orleans and sold. But so extraordinary an interest did Gen. SLOCUM take in the success of the negotiation, that he actually sent a confidential staff officer with the cotton, saith GRANT, to New-Orleans, and this officer did not return until the property was disposed of and the money for it realized. What sum it produced I cannot say, but my recollection is, that at that time cotton was worth in New-Orleans $1 35 per lb. The 600 bales contained fully 300,000 lbs., and the whole ought to have netted something over $400,000.

Gen. WASHBURN afterward came here as SLOCUM's successor, and learning by accident that NOLAND, whose former history as a rebel he perfectly understood, had received a large quantity of cotton from Gen. SLOCUM, he caused the matter to be investigated by a military commission, a copy of whose proceedings I here subjoin:

HEADQUARTERS DISTRICT OF VICKSBURGH, }
VICKSBURGH, Miss., Jan. 6, 1865. }
[Extract.]

SPECIAL ORDERS No. 6.—Par. VI. * * * The following-named officers are appointed a commission to inquire into the ownership and ascertain what became of 657 bales of cotton which were turned over by Capt. WM. FINKLER, Depot Quartermaster, to Lieut. STEINER, First Maryland Cavalry, A. A. Q. M., his successor as Depot Quartermaster. They are authorized to send for persons and papers, and to examine witnesses.

The testimony taken, with the finding of the commission, will be reported to these headquarters.

DETAIL FOR THE COMMISSION.

Col. J. H. HOWE, One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Illinois Infantry.
Capt. C. G. FISHER, Marine Regiment.
Capt. N. G. CLEMENT, Fifty-second United States Colored Infantry.

By order of Maj.-Gen. C. C. WASHBURN.
W. H. MORGAN, Assistant Adjutant-General.

* * * * There being no further testimony offered, the commission, after mature deliberation, respectfully submit the following conclusions, drawn from the evidence adduced and the result of the investigation.

1. The commission is of the opinion that the 600 bales of cotton referred to in said order were the property of the United States, by capture and confiscation in the enemy's country, and were in possession of Lieut. D. C. STEINER, A. A. Q. M. post of Vicksburgh, and for which he was responsible.

2. That on the 8th day of August, A. D. 1864, the 600 bales of said cotton were turned over and delivered by Lieut. STEINER, A. A. Q. M., to one W. S. GRANT, by order of Major-Gen. H. W. Slocum, commanding the District of Vicksburgh, upon a claim preferred against the United States by one JOSEPH NOLAND, a citizen of Madison Parish, Louisiana, which claim was based upon a pretended seizure of 600 bales of his cotton by Gen. GRANT, in April, 1863, at Milliken's Bend, Louisiana, to barricade transports, which ran the Vicksburgh batteries about that time, said NOLAND having sold said claim to said W. S. GRANT for $91,000, after a fruitless effort to establish it by himself and agents, he regarding the claim as hopeless.

3. That said claim was not a valid claim against the United States.

The commission regard it as very doubtful whether JOSEPH NOLAND had beyond 40 bales of baled cotton there at the time, and whether the same was seized by Gen. GRANT; and further, that said NOLAND had abandoned his plantation and property there, and taken refuge within the enemy's lines, and remained there until after the surrender of Vicksburgh, and that he took no measures to recover any such cotton for six months afterward, and not then until he was prompted and induced to prefer said claim by one DELANO, who undertook to prosecute it for one-half he might recover.

4. That said 600 bales of cotton, after being delivered to said GRANT, were immediately afterward shipped to New-Orleans and disposed of for the benefit of himself and others interested with him.

Of the remaining 57 bales, 18 bales were accounted for by a board of survey as shortage in rebaling, and the remainder, 39 bales, were turned over by order of Gen. SLOCUM to one LOVELACE on a legitimate claim of 50 bales which had been satisfactorily established.

The commission call attention to the singular fact developed in the testimony, that although JOSEPH NOLAND and his agent had vigorously prosecuted and pressed this claim for weeks before the Commanding-General of the District of Vicksburgh without success, and regarding said claim as hopeless, had sold it to the said GRANT for the comparatively nominal sum of $91,000, yet within a day or two afterwards, in the hands of said GRANT, who was an unscrupulous cotton speculator, and who, according to the testimony, assumed to have peculiar influence at said headquarters, it was allowed as a valid claim upon the same proofs which had been submitted in support of it by NOLAND and his agent.

The order of Major-Gen. H. W. SLOCUM, before referred to, directing said 600 bales of cotton to be turned over to said W. S. GRANT, recites for its authority another order by the Commanding-General of the Department of the Tennessee; but your commission has been unable to find any such order, and it is difficult to see how any such order, directing any particular number of bales of cotton to be turned over to said Noland on said claim could have been issued, as there was no sufficient time for its issuance between the date of the finding of the commission which last passed aforesaid claim, (of which commission Col. CRANDALL was President,) and the issuance of said order by Major-Gen. Slocum. The records and proceedings of said commission cannot be found, though vigilant search has been made for the same. Therefore, the commission is not advised of what, if any, proofs were submitted to said commission, (of which Col. CRANDALL was President,) showing how many bales of cotton were taken from the said JOSEPH NOLAND for the purpose before stated.

J. H. HOWE, Lieut.-Col. 124th Ill. Vols.,
And President of the Commission.
C. G. FISHER, Capt. M. R. and J. A. M. C.

When Gen. R. B. MARCY, Inspector-General of the Army, was here last Summer, he examined the subject, took copies of the papers, and forwarded them, with a special report of his own, to the War Department. What his opinions were I do not know, of course, nor is it of much importance. The facts speak for themselves, and it is not surprising that an Inspector-General should think it necessary to report upon them. It is evident that the parties to this great fraud took pains to cover their tracks; but would it not be an imposition upon Gen. SLOCUM's intelligence to name that he was merely a deluded victim in the transaction?

The Nation:

When the publication of THE NATION was commenced, there was naturally a good deal of doubt felt and expressed in many quarters as to the existence of any demand on the part of the public for such a paper as THE NATION aimed to be. We are glad to say that the experience of the last three months has satisfied us that this doubt was not well founded. We believe we are justified in asserting that no such reception has ever in this country been accorded to any weekly paper, not pictorial, as this journal has received. We find, both in the number of our subscribers and the expressions of opinion which reach us from all parts of the country, abundant proof that such a paper as we seek to supply is sure both of wide circulation and hearty appreciation. The most sanguine anticipations we ventured to form on this point have been realized. In other words—and we trust we say this without being held guilty of undue self-laudation—the American public has shown that its literary taste is higher than it has been commonly assumed to be.

We felt at the outset of our enterprise that, in order to test thoroughly the popular opinion of our work, it was desirable to make the price so low as to submit the paper at once to the judgment of as large a circle of readers as possible. The experiment has been so successful that it is no longer necessary to continue it, and propose, with and after this number, to raise the price to SIX DOLLARS a year; a sum which will prove, we trust, amply remunerative. And as efforts have been made in some quarters to create the impression that THE NATION, as well as other periodicals called into existence by the return of peace, is destined to be short-lived, we may be pardoned for stating that the amount of our paid-up capital is such as to relieve us of all uneasiness on that score.

GRAPE VINES.
IONA AND ISRAELLA.
"THE TWO BEST OF THE ENTIRE LIST."—SOLON ROBINSON.

A new edition of the twenty-four page pamphlet, with price lists, is now ready, and will be sent for a two-cent stamp to all applicants.

This edition contains, in addition to its former matter, with full history of the IONA and ISRAELLA, much additional concerning those new kinds, showing their deportment during the past season, which has been, from its sudden changes to extremes of temperature, the most severely trying to the vine ever experienced.

The general testimony from every quarter fully substantiates all that the most earnest friends of these kinds have ever claimed for them in regard to their earliness, extreme hardiness, and surpassing quality and beauty.

That they are by a long interval the best American grapes in all essential points, and the only perfect grapes, according to the best European standard, that are fitted for our climate for table grapes, will be clearly apparent to all who investigate the subject.

It will also appear equally clear that the IONA and ISRAELLA are the two kinds to plant in preference to all others, both for profit for market and for enjoyment for the family.

Another year will demonstrate their preëminence for wine.

The following letter from Mr. Charles Downing will be gladly read by all interested in grapes:

NEWBURGH, Sept. 26, 1865.

Dr. C. W. Grant:

To your letter asking me how the Iona compares this year with the Delaware, as to time of ripening, endurance of foliage, &c., I answer as follows:

The two past seasons the Iona, being the first years of fruiting with me, ripened a little later than the Delaware, but this season a week earlier, which was owing, probably, to the more mature state of the Iona vines, as well as to the foliage of the Delaware being more affected with mildew.

The Israella ripened as early as the Hartford Prolific, or before its beginning to color about one week earlier; but, being also superior in flavor with handsomer and more compact bunch, adhering well, and keeping a long time after ripening, it will be more valuable for market, and, from my present experience, I think it will prove the best early variety for this purpose I have yet seen. I do not, however, give a decided opinion of these grapes until further trial.

Both Iona and Israella have so far proved hardy and vigorous, and the foliage has been much less injured by mildew than Delaware, Concord and most other sorts. There has been more mildew on the leaves this year than usual, and to some extent on the fruit of a few varieties.

CHARLES DOWNING.

P. S.—I recommend this pamphlet as containing matter of much interest to all who are concerned in grapes, whether it be a single vine for the yard, dozens for the garden, or hundreds for family supply, or thousands for vineyards.

Allen's Hybrid has generally done well the past season, and must rank as the best table grape for the garden. It surpasses even in flavor the famous Golden Chasselas, which is the favorite white grape of France, but which does not thrive in open culture in this country.
